Minister says... "BEER IS BEST"

Defence Minister Leo Cadieux reduced to proper perspective a national weekend friver over beer carried in one of the three Canadian Forces Hercules aircraft standing by to take relief supplies into Nigeria-Biafra.

Mr. Cadieux told the House of Commons that the Hercules carried beer because its intended destination was without a known source of drinking water and that the ration for airmen involved "comes to an average of two bottles of beer per man per day, not counting weekends" issued on a daily basis.

He was answering public charges that the Forces were "guilty of criminal negligence by transporting beer instead of food" and pointed out that Government had never been asked to carry food in its planes but that they merely be "ready to carry relief supplies for the victims of disaster from Fernando Po or inside Nigeria itself".

A weekend T.V. story from Ottawa gave the impression that the beer, now in Hercules standing by at Recife, Brazil, had bumped relief supplies. Mr. Cadieux gave the facts and stressed the importance of not being "unfair" to the Canadian Forces personnel.

At this stage in proceedings there are two operations involved in setting up the Canadian Forces Nigeria-Biafra operation. One is based on the international airport at Lagos in Nigeria where accommodation and amenities are available; on the other hand the operational base at Santa Isabel on the island of Fernando Po required self-sufficiency since the region has no known potable water sources, and was unlikely to have suitable living accommodation for the Forces personnel involved in the airlifts.

One fully-loaded Hercules was enough for the initial flight to Nigeria but two Hercules were needed to take the necessary people, their equipment and tents onto Fernando Po. There just wasn't room for passengers such as newsmen on these two flights because all the floor space was used. However, beer, soft drinks and a small quantity of Canadian cigarettes were tucked under vehicles after CFB Trenton had bought them with non-public funds.

The beer was intended to replace rapid loss of body fluids in the hot, unhealthy climate. Contrary to news reports, the amenities didn't bump any passengers or relief supplies. In fact the Government wasn't asked to bring relief supplies to Africa. The object of the Exercise being to move plentiful relief supplies already at Lagos, not to bring more from Canada.

Allus ugly people better stay off the streets, its HALLOWEEN

Another popular belief has it that those born on halloween have the faculty of seeing and conversing with supernatural beings. We found a Corporal in 1 Hangar (he wishes to remain anonymous) with a 31 Oct birthday and he claims it is all too true. He tells of having regular conferences with the spirit of MacKenzie King in which ghostly predictions on Canada's future are passed to him. Some of the prophecies are worth passing on. By 1980 Canada will be on its way to being the worlds first tri-lingual country, with English, French, and Newfoundlandese as official languages. In 1990 Canada will ask the United Nations to intercede to prevent the franchise of her last NHL team, the Montreal Canadians, being sold and moved to Hawaii. In 1970, U.S. President, Pat Paulsen, will make a monetary offer for the northern half of Alberta and Saskatchewan. He will propose using it as an American cultural wasteland to take the strain off conditions at home.

Much of the fun, imagined and real, went out of Halloween with the introduction of indoor plumbing and the custom now calls for plastic pumpkins and paper costumes. Of course, quite a number of parents try to keep the old prankster tradition going by competing to see who can put the softest, naicest, and stickiest gooody into the kids collection bags. Who hasn't discovered his youngsters cache under some dark stairway about two weeks after halloween? It has usually become one large ball of toffee, apple cores, popcorn, and broken cookies by that time but to the tad it is still worth a premeal nibble.

Perhaps the one feature of the present day Halloween ritual that is worth preserving is the UNICEF shell out. So be as generous as you can when a Brownie bangs your door tomorrow night!

ALDA LEWIS HONORED

Way back, during the Christmas holidays of 1967 to be exact, Miss Alda Lewis received a small parcel from O'Hara. Upon opening the package she discovered she was the proud recipient of the Canadian Centennial Medal. Miss Lewis felt very happy with this pleasant surprise; however the matter was mentioned to no one until just last week.

It could be said that such is the way this lady accepts any situation. She is a dedicated teacher and felt humbly honoured and very grateful to receive her due recognition, but felt it unnecessary to make a fuss over. The fact is that she had been selected by the Biggin Hill School District (Cold Lake Base) as their nominee from the teaching staff to receive the Centennial decoration.

Alda has been teaching grade ones here at Cold Lake since September 1958 and the interest that she takes in these little ones is evident whenever the topic is raised. During this interview she had the following remarks to make: "I am beginning my tenth year in grade one at Athabasca School. (I haven't graduated from grade one during my stay at Cold Lake). I may be prejudiced but I do believe that grade one is a very important grade. True, many believe that all we do is doodle over cutting out paper dolls and clay modelling. But as we doodle we are cutting out life patterns and moulding human clay. It is my sincere hope that I may in some small measure help to shape better life patterns for the little persons who come into my class".

OTTAWA (CFP) -- Ever been bumped while a priority five traveller?

If so, good news is on the way. Movement officials here are taking a good look at the plight of priority five aircraft passengers with a view to getting more of them through to destination.

Meanwhile, disregard paragraph 13 of Annex B to CFAO 20-20, except for the first four lines. It will be amended later, says CANFORGEN 195.

COMING TO SABRE WAKE?

Chatham, N.B. - The F-86 Sabre Jet phases out of the Forces inventory with closing here by year's end of the Sabre Transition Unit.

Chatham proposes to host a stand-down 29 and 30 November to give personnel who have been associated with Sabre activities a chance to salute in the traditional manner the retirement of one of the best-known postwar fighter aircraft that Canadian airmen have flown.

It is impossible to extend individual invitations to ex-members of Sabre Squadrons, so Base Chatham extends an open 'invite' to all interested persons.

For planning and accommodation requirements it is requested that names of those wishing to attend be submitted to CFB Chatham, Attention Stand-Down Co-Ordinator, as soon as possible.

Early in the seventh century Pope Boniface IV instituted the All Saints Day festival to mark the transformation of the Roman heathen Pantheon into a Christian temple. It was first made a feast of obligation by Gregory IV in 835 and is kept by the Roman Catholic Church and the Church of England on 1 November. It is designed to honor all departed saints and was originally called All-hallows.

The evening of October 31 was called All Hallows' Eve later shortened to Halloween.

It is associated with the prevalence of supernatural influences and the Halloween portion of the All Saints Festival is really a relic of pagan times. The custom of trick or treat presumably represents the paying of bribes to protect against the casting of harmful spells.

In the north of England, halloween is known as Nut-crack Night. The origin of such an odd name is obscure but a fascinating conjecture would be that they used to lay about the pranksters in that area and crack some skulls.

CLUB 41 gets the axe

Destruction prior to construction of a new club for the corporals and airmen has begun and will be completed by Dec. 15.

THE FACELESS CHILDREN

In today's world millions of children are ill-fed, poorly clothed and uneducated. We have never seen them: they are the "faceless" children.

Canadians as world citizens are increasingly aware that knowledge and understanding, tolerance and compassion, are the keys to the future. UNICEF (UNITED NATIONS CHILDREN'S FUND) is one of these keys. Established under United Nations, it is an international effort to give every child freedom from disease and hunger, an education and opportunity to earn a living.

UNICEF participated in by 120 countries with 477 projects, is a co-operative effort to improve the lot of the world's children. Interested governments must first request UNICEF assistance. For each UNICEF dollar from the UNICEF Fund these governments provide the equivalent of $2.50 on approved projects. This assistance is given on the basis of need regardless of political beliefs, race, or creed.

At Halloween time gaily dressed youngsters will come knocking at your door. For them you will have ready the traditional treats. But Canadian youngsters will feel happier if you place in their UNICEF collection boxes money for their "faceless" friends.

RCAF MEMORIAL PLANS

Following are extracts from an address Brigadier-General D. R. Adamson, Chief of Staff for operations, Air Transport Command, delivered to service newspaper editors during their second annual conference at Base Trenton, Ont. Oct. 9. He concluded his remarks by making the 18th annual convention of the Royal Canadian Air Force Association.

"I speak to you today on behalf of the national committee of the Royal Canadian Air Force Memorial.

Some of you will recall that I spoke to the national convention at Montreal last year, at which the membership passed a resolution to support the raising of funds for the purpose of constructing an RCAF memorial to be located at Trenton, Ont.

The starting point of the project was the widely held view among Canadian airmen - regular, RCAF and RCAC - that something more meaningful than the archives at Ottawa is needed if Canada's military air heritage is to survive in a form that will be a reminder and an inspiration to future generations of Canadians. With encouragement from such people as A/M Curtis, Gen. Sharp and Gen. Reyno, to say nothing of the rank and file of the RCAF wings and RCAC squadrons to which we have been exposed, we formed a committee at Trenton which has since become a company under the Ontario companies act.

We conducted a survey among the regular force, your association and other interested individuals, designed to answer two questions:

- (1) Was there support for such a project?
- (2) If there was support where should it be located?

The response was unusually strong and 94.8% of those surveyed agreed with the idea. Of that 94.8%, 77.6% were in favour of the Trenton location.

Continuing care and maintenance of the building could in the long run be more costly than initial construction. For that reason we were anxious to get government approval for DND to accept that responsibility. That was achieved with the proposal that the memorial would contain facilities that the government would otherwise be obligated to provide at Trenton, namely, chapels. The government also agreed to set aside 35 acres of property adjacent to the aerodrome and accessible to the public on which the memorial would be constructed and which would be developed into an exclusive park thus further enhancing and complementing the memorial structure.

THE BUILDING

We are not talking about a shrine, a mausoleum, a museum, or indeed, a cairn, which however beautiful will never represent the ideals and traditions of Canadian military airmen. We are talking about a building or a group of buildings of about 50,000 square feet that will be not only a reminder of our heritage but will be, more important, a living memorial that will serve a useful function in the community and indeed to Canadians as a whole, particularly organizations such as the RCAF. In fact, this project, if developed as we envisage it, could well become the heart and soul of the air force of the future, a place to be visited by all airmen.

FUND RAISING

Fund raising campaign, under the chairmanship of Lt. Col. Duff will be getting underway mid-November. (Subscriptions for this memorial will be raised solely by public contributions.) The campaign will be divided into four major elements: - RCAF - (10,000 plus somewhere "out there", another 250,000 ex-RCAF. - RCAC - 29,000 - In-service - (military) to include NATO and Commonwealth countries - Industry - (selected industry, aircraft companies, etc.) - Women of the RCAF - (possibly 5,000 strong)

Each of these organizations will be preparing their separate campaigns, taking a lead and advice from the national memorial committee. The RCAF memorial fund committee will not be telling organizations how to raise their share of the appeal. That, we take it, is your responsibility, and one that you will wish to organize in your own way, in a manner that suits your membership. However, the committee stands ready to assist in any way and, in that regard, Capt. Tony Leicester, Retired, who is the only paid employee, is the National Coordinator and may be contacted at Trenton at any time.

SIGNIFICANT EVENTS

- The parade at Trenton Sept. 29 was to commemorate the Battle of Britain and to inaugurate the memorial fund raising campaign. A/M Dunlap was the reviewing officer and in the course of the ceremonies he unveiled a six-ton commemorative field stone on which has been fixed an appropriate plaque.
- FOR THE FUTURE
- 11 Nov. - target date for the announcement of the architects' competition.
- Mid-Nov. - fund raising campaign material to be distributed.
- Mid-Feb. - judging of the first phase of the competition and selection of four finalists.
- May '69 - jury decision on winning architect.
- May '69 - approach to other interested air forces.
- Battle of Britain - 15 Sep '69 - sod-turning ceremony.
- Spring '70 - cornerstone laying.
- Fall '71 - opening of the memorial by the senior honorary patron, Governor-General Roland Michener.
- Fall '71 - I would hope, the inaugural function, the 21st annual convention of the Royal Canadian Air Force Association.

Letters to the Editor

OTTAWA, October 9, 1968.

The Courier, Editor, Box 2350, Medley, Alberta.

Dear Sir,

Since mid-September I received several communications from residents of the Canadian Forces Base, Cold Lake, Alberta, concerning the shortage of classroom space. I was in communication with Mr. Cadieux, Minister of National Defence, by phone, and later, on September 17, by letter, describing the situation to him and requesting that some immediate steps be taken to provide more classrooms. I received a reply from the Minister advising that he would look into the matter. On September 24, he wrote me again stating that the shortage of classrooms would be overcome once the new school is completed but, in the meantime, the residents would have to accept the foregoing. However, he promised that every effort will continue to be made to resolve the existing situation. On October 1, I wrote the Minister again suggesting that, since the construction of the school is a project which may take a year or more, it would be better if a more immediate solution could be achieved. My suggestion was that mobile classrooms could be leased from a Calgary firm which supplies any type of temporary structure on short notice delivered to the site. I telephoned him on October 6 to determine whether he had taken any steps in that direction and again he promised that he would look into it. He also informed me that he will be travelling West in the near future and possibly would visit the Base to investigate the situation further. I was left with the impression that he would look favourably upon the idea of providing temporary classrooms.

I will continue to keep you informed as any progress is made in this matter.

Yours sincerely,

Paul Yewchuk
Paul Yewchuk, M.P., Athabasca

Since I have the impression, after reading Dr. Yewchuk's letter, that Base officials are not doing anything about school problems, I wish to assure residents that Base officials are continually hastening higher echelons about progress on additional classrooms needed. I, too, was able to speak with the Minister of National Defence about our school problem but it's not something that you resolve overnight. I told a group of "concerned" parents two months ago not to look for any relief before September '69. There has been no change in that date. If there had been you would have been the first to have been told about it.

I thank Dr. Yewchuk for his letter to our paper and for his interest in our problem. I trust he will appreciate the reason for my comments.

W.H. Vincent
Colonel
Base Commander

Subsequent to October 9, word was received from Ottawa that construction of the 10-room addition to Athabasca School will commence in February, 1969 with August 1969 as a completion date. - Ed.

Are you ever puzzled as to what the student protestors really want? Seldom are their goals articulated. Here is a rare listing of what a top spokesman for U.S. student uproar put in print. "Immediate end of the Vietnam war, withdrawal of all American troops from foreign bases, abolition of economic imperialism, an end of the draft, legalization of marijuana and psychedelic drugs, civilian disarmament in the United States (beginning with the police) abolition of money, a program of 'full unemployment' under which machines and computers will do all the work, elimination of air and water pollution, the availability of free abortions and birth-control supplies and information, student participation in educational policy-making and as much television time reserved for showing explicit love-making as is now devoted to homicide."

Well, now you know. Very interesting.

Ottawa 4 Oct. 17, 1968

Dear Colonel Vincent, I wish to express my appreciation for the wonderful reception which you extended to me during my stay at Cold Lake.

The excellent briefings given by yourself, Lt. Col. Fallis, Lt. Col. Thorneycroft, Lt. Col. Philip, Cndr. Simpson, Major Wolf and Major Potter gave me a clear insight of the "modus operandi" of an operational base.

Your mess staff, both in the officers and the senior NCOs Messes, deserve special commendation for the banquets they provided to myself and my party.

Please accept and convey my deepest thanks to everyone who contributed to the success of my visit and rest assured that I will always have a soft spot in my heart for Cold Lake when I look at the picture of the twenty-two CF 104s which occupies a place of honour in my home.

Yours sincerely,
Leo Cadieux

Dear Editor: Would you please publish this poem. My mother-in-law purchased an old card-board with a poem engraved on it before she passed away. These words have become an influence upon my outlook on life and would like to pass the words onward:

It's a wonderful journey This journey called life And some travel fast and some slow; But happy are they Who find on the way Dear faces of friends as they go.

For all barrack-block practicing psychologists, this poem is not sent to the Editor because of loneliness or lack of friends but for information about a beautiful poem plus an outlook on life.

YOUR CANDIDATES FOR MAYOR

WORTHY

SMITH

Maj. Bill Worthy Capt. Barry Smith Photographed in the Courier office while looking for free Publicity.

On Nov. 4th and 5th, besides voting in the Aldermanic elections, we will be selecting our man from a host of two volunteers, to take over the task of Mayor of our community for the next year. Because circumstances have dictated that this be a short notice election, there has not been enough time for normal advisory nominations from the various sections of the married patch; nor has there been time to organize the hoopla and pizzas that it had been hoped would go along with our first open election for this high office.

Barry Smith, his wife Ruth, and their six children, ranging in age from 5 to 17 years, have been on the base for nearly three years. He is interested in seeing that facilities are provided for childrens sports and if elected mayor, his major project would be an attempt to get another inside arena so that both hockey and open skating could be accommodated. Of course he realizes that this means money and lots of it. He figures that a great deal could be done with a very small increase in your council assessment. One thing that bothers Barry personally is the number of dogs that are allowed to run loose, getting into garbage cans and generally creating havoc. He says, "A vote for Barry Smith is a vote for tighter pet control" and he means it.

Bill Worthy and his wife, Corinne, are the parents of seven children, ranging from 9 to 1 years and are expecting at least their eighth in February. Bill has been at Cold Lake for a little more than a year and is very much involved with the local flying club. In discussing our Polar Carnival, Bill revealed that he thought the competition would be too serious and he would like to see more attention paid to fun and less to scores. Also, he does not like to see council sponsored activities degenerate into baby sitting agencies for reluctant children and would attempt to do something about both items, if elected.

Either of these gentlemen would be a fine mayor and after interviewing them, the Courier feels that neither would be a rubber stamp operator. The CO, 417 has announced that the squadron will mount a major campaign to elect Bill Worthy. Barry Smith has shucked off his initial inclination to help them and is expecting massive support from the workers in 448.

Go to it chaps, and let's see a clean but hard fought campaign. For the edification of the voters who are new to the base, Barry Smith is the shorter and stockier of the two candidates. We would appreciate hearing of any instances of a round man nailing up posters complimentary to Bill Worthy and vice versa.

Married 65 years

A locally well-known couple Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lancaster (aged 92 and 84) of Beaver Crossing, recently celebrated their 65th wedding anniversary.

The memorable date, Sept. 19th, was celebrated with an Open House invitation to all friends. Fifty people dropped in to visit throughout the day.

Mrs. Lancaster, who has a very good memory for dates, vividly recalls the then young couple's arrival from England. They left their home in Heathfield, Sussex, in 1907 and arrived in Edmonton on their first year. "Edmonton was just a pup in those days," recalled the Lancasters. The winter of 1907-1908 was spent in a semi-wood and canvas tent in Edmonton. Mrs. Lancaster stated that after camping in the cold fresh air of the western plains she had never felt better.

Mr. Lancaster, after working in the Edmonton - Calgary areas for several years decided to head north and break new land. Travelling by train from Drumheller via Edmonton to Kitscoty.

There they gathered together a wagon and team of horses, three cows, three heifers, a crate of chickens and two boys, Roy and Cyril, aged 9 and 6, they headed "Northward Ho!"

Arriving at the North Saskatchewan River they found the ice had not cleared yet. This meant about a week's delay until the river cleared and the primitive ferry could cross. Living in a tent during the delay, Mrs. Lancaster took the opportunity to replenish the bread supply and learned to make bannock. "There were no stores around in those days" she chuckled. After crossing the North Saskatchewan River it was steady going until they reached the Beaver River. Arriving at the river late in the evening and anxious to reach their destination, it required routing someone out of bed. This inconvenience to the ferry operator "cost us two bits", they recall. They arrived in Beaver Crossing on Oct. 18, 1913.

Asked about their first impressions, Mrs. Lancaster said "It looked very nice, all these nice trees in contrast to the treeless prairies. The eldest son, Roy, recalls he was very happy - there were no schools to go to.

The first winter the Lancaster family shared a cabin with friends. The following spring a log cabin was built on the new homestead. Mr. Lancaster and the boys then proceeded to clear the land with axe and grub-hoe. They depended mainly on a combination of farming and fishing with a little trapping.

A long arduous trip was made to Kitscoty once a year by horse and wagon for the luxuries like flour and sugar. This excursion was made in winter when the muskrat was frozen and took about two weeks for the return trip. Asked about her overall impressions of their life on the frontier, they admit there were hardships and disappointments but also there has been abundance and happiness on the Lancaster homestead which is located eight miles south-east of Grand Centre, Alta. Our congratulations go out to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lancaster.

MEMBERS PLEASED

In interviewing a large cross section of club members on the hangar line, it was found that the majority is quite pleased with the fine job being done by the present committee. A few minor points were brought out but on the whole the reaction was very much in favour.

A few unforeseen obstacles have popped in the remodelling project but the gala grand opening will be as scheduled (Dec. 16).

Many interviewed stated that "my wife does not like to go but is now looking forward to attending after the opening". Some stated they did not think the floor space big enough. According to an informed committee member the new expanded floor space is bigger than is allotted by Ottawa as sufficient for the present membership.

A few others feel that the stag room should have been remodelled first while many others said, "It doesn't matter, the main point is that something is being done." When the PMC was approached on this matter he stated that the committee thought the lounge had priority and also would provide funds to bring the stag room up to the calibre of the lounge, at a later date.

The younger members (married and single) felt that the entertainment was geared to the older generation. It is felt by the entertainment committee that the entertainment to be provided in the future club will be the best to offer in the Edmonton circuit and should be pleasing to all ages.

LEAVE IS A MANY SPLENDORED THING

The honeymoon is over in the leave business. One of the most pleasant features of unification was the Army leave system which has, till now, been applied to all the Forces. It fell halfway between what the Air Force had been used to and the jammy system the Navy had kept secret for years. But no more - with only a couple of minor differences, we're back to the old Air Force leave regulations. A dog-in-the-manger type consolation could be generated from the realization that the new order will be tougher on the land and sea forces who have always enjoyed something better.

The most painfully prominent feature of the new edict is that you must take your leave in at least 7 day increments unless the balance of your annual leave is less than seven days. A further exception is that if a statutory holiday falls within a proposed 7 day leave period, it will not be charged against you (ie you will get 7 days for 6). Another exception to the seven day rule is that an officer commanding a Command can authorize less for special operational reasons but you can bet your sweet biffy that nobody will know the parameters for that one and you can forget it.

You can, however, on the authorization of an officer commanding a Command or Region, accumulate not less than 7 days annual leave where:

- a. the exigencies of the Service prevent annual leave being granted in the leave year;
- b. service has been overseas or in a remote area where annual leave is not permitted or possible;
- c. a member intends to use such leave for the purpose of furthering his education;
- d. a member intends to travel abroad extensively; or

e. a member will be retiring with a pension or an annuity the following leave year and the accumulation will bring his total entitlement for special and annual leave in his final year of service to a total not exceeding 60 days.

The atheist is a most embarrassed man who, when he is profoundly grateful for a favour, has no one to thank.

SOME GLAD SOME SAD

The allocations of trades to payfields have now been approved. Twenty-six of the 107 trades in the forces are moving one rung up or down the payfield ladder as of 1 Oct.

Affected are about 10,900 tradesmen. The vast majority, some 70,000 in the other 81 trades, are not involved at all.

Six trades with a total strength of about 4,600 men advance one pay field and 20 trades involving about 6,300 men go back one pay field.

It was on 1 Oct 1966 that a radically new trade structure as well as the new pay structure were introduced.

The 350 odd trades of the former services were reduced to about 100 and the old trade groupings discarded in favour of five pay fields. All were to be evaluated every two years at the same time that pay is reviewed.

It was widely recognized that the first two years would be a settling-in period for the new trade structure and that in 1968 there would have to be some readjustments as a result of experience. It was decided that where adjustments had to be made no trade would change by more than one payfield up or down as a result of re-evaluation.

Although further adjustment may well be the result of future reviews it is not anticipated that changes of this magnitude will be necessary again. In the Forces as elsewhere, specifications for each trade have to change to meet developments in equipment, in techniques and in tasks.

Trades moving to payfield seven from six are the air traffic controller 161 (corporal and above) and electro-mechanical technician 431; to payfield five from four-bowswain 181 and electrician 614, and to four from three and firefighter 65 and military policeman 81L.

Going to six from seven are the ammunition technician 423 and field engineer 041; to five from six signaller sea 261 (Leading Seaman and above), stationary engineer 623 and terminal equipment technician 222; to four from five - cartographic draughtsman 151; construction engineering technician 611, dental equipment maintenance technician 724, draughtsman 82, fire controller 071 (Able Seaman and below) lineman 052, meteorological technician 121, operator engineering equipment 932, radio operator 211, seaman 281 (Able Seaman and below), and transportation controller 934, to three from four - air traffic controller 161 (privates) dental assistant 721, dental clinical assistant 722, and driver signals 051.

All tradesmen affected have a vested right to their present pay. When Treasury Board approves the pay raise to be effective 1 Oct 68 (which also includes the Reserves) there will no longer be need of the vested right because pay raises in every case are expected to more than make up the difference. This means for some tradesmen the expected pay raise will be smaller than the average and for others it will be larger.

FAREWELL TO THE FOX

Tac Eval on a Bar

In our last edition of the Courier, you may have read the letter to the editor from Major I.H. Firth that did great and wonderful work to correct discrepancies pointed about him in the previous issue.

At first glance the editor tended to disbelieve the statement that this venerable gentleman was sent on a secret mission to Tac Eval the Officers' Mess Bar at Cold Lake but diligent work by a more industrious Courier reporter proved this to be indeed a fact.

Observe the look of resolution and dedication to duty that radiates from our tipping monitor in the picture above. They just don't make assessors like that any more, lad. As you can easily see, the

At this time Major Firth should be busy getting the Officers' Mess at Lahr into an operational state and through his noble efforts we are sure that their establishment will get a "one" rating across the board.

We would be remiss if we didn't mention the heraldic crest adopted by this gentleman. It consists of two ramparts facing one another across a bar with the motto inscribed on the bottom "Here come the Judge".

Fish & Game Association News

By Maureen Williams

It was brought to our attention recently that another hunter had to be rescued from the bush when he'd lost his way. (He was found quickly, before harm came to him, but others have been less fortunate). Don't let this happen to you! A few simple precautions, before you go into the bush, could save a lot of anxiety and discomfort. Get yourself a reliable compass (it need not be expensive) and learn how to use it correctly. If you are hunting with a companion, make absolutely sure that the arrangements to meet at a designated spot and time are well understood -- and FOLLOW THESE PLANS. (Failure to do so could not only get you lost, but could result in an accident.) Always come out of the bush well before dark. (Spending the night alone in the bush can be pretty trying if you're unprepared for it!) If you are following wounded game please remember to pay attention to direction and landmarks. Finding your way back is important, too.

Good luck to all the participants in the present Hunter-Training Course which is nearly completed. (The next course will probably be held early in the new year).

Elections for the 1969 Executive of the C.F.B. Sportsmen's Fish and Game Association will be held in December.

"Bank" Henry landed a 24-pound pike and some lake trout on a recent fishing trip. Someone was wondering why Father Sabourin, with all his connections upstairs, still hasn't got his deer!

Col. G. F. Ockenden, Base Borden Commander, kicks soccer ball to start two-week training camp on base for Canada's national soccer team. It eats, sleeps and trains at Borden while preparing for this fall's world soccer championship. The Canadians meet Bermuda and the USA during the home-and-home series, Toronto being the Canadian end of the series. (CFP)

Outdoor Scene

...with Bush Rides.

The snow flakes come and the snow flakes go, and according to one of the resident Indians out at the Cold Lake reserve, we will be blessed with at least three weeks of "Indian Summer". The gentleman I spoke with seemed reluctant to comment on the deer/moose situation, but did say that we could look forward to a booming crop of rabbits.

Fishing at most of the smaller lakes dropped off and most anglers have stored their boats for the winter. The next few weeks could be a good time to sharpen up those ice augers. That H2O will be crystallizing soon. Chatter on base has it that Cold Lake is still the spot for lake trout.

"Mr. Amway" - Deryll Mann recently returned from a not so successful five day safari to Smith, Alta. Deryll reports that he and "Duke" Chambers "encountered their fair share of muddy roads and found ruffed grouse and American hunters much more plentiful than trophy moose.

Sightings of ducks and geese are still coming in. With the weather holding up and by the looks of feed still in the fields, ducks should stay in the area for awhile yet. It was noted that the ducks are forming in much bigger flocks and are drinking the water to feed, earlier in the afternoon. Next question - where are they feeding?

The "Barrack Block Boys" "Butch" Boucher, Marcel Lapointe and Gilles Leveille travelled out from River way, to knock down their supper of greenhead mallards. The word is that the ones they did call down had strayed over from the Quebec flyway.

Father Sabourin and R. B. Jackson took part in a good shoot in the Altsask, Sask. area, earlier this month. The final tally - 17 speckled belly geese. An ex-Medley resident, Bill Dunnigan who is now stationed at Altsask, acted as official Padre guide in off-duty hours. These geese also spotted numerous low flying "Protected" Sandhill cranes.

Congratulations to Mr. A. MacDonald of Ardmore who held the winning ticket on the Automatic Shotgun raffle, sponsored by the CFB Cold Lake Fish and Game Assn. (A held dog) Lovers remember - who is responsible for this? Don't hunt a pet, Don't pet a hunter.

SPORTS

the expert curler

Now that you rookie curlers have had the Club's series of beginners' lessons, you are ready for some instruction on one of the finer points of the game. If you are to be accepted as a knowledgeable club member you must learn to recognize the expert curlers among us and treat them with the respect and deference they deserve.

Recognition is the easiest part because expert curlers are fully aware of their superior skills and have developed a ritualistic routine that is designed to make lesser curlers aware of them too.

Firstly, the expert curler does not make an appearance on the ice until five minutes after the bell, by which time the other seven players have taken the rocks from the rack and completed their introductions. His tardiness adds to the drama of his entry and you won't forget the first time you witness the expert launching himself with a powerful lunge from the backboards onto his left foot slider sole. He crouches gracefully into his delivery position and slides out past the hog line. This one manoeuvre tells him all he needs to know about ice conditions and is usually a traumatic experience for the opposition.

During the game it soon becomes evident that the expert thinks out each shot much more thoroughly than do ordinary curlers. This must be so because he crouches and sights from behind, above, and in front of the house. He has been seen to do so even with only one rock in play but it is only for another expert to know the computer-like thinking that leads to his final decision. When he arrives at the back to shoot, the expert reviews the whole layout from the vantage point of an extra 100 feet of distance. At this point he will invariably have the broom moved a centimeter left or right.

When all is final he will strike his pre-delivery pose, sitting on his right heel, and wait for complete silence. His delivery will be a long graceful slide with right arm fully extended for long after the rock is released. His absolute mastery of the game will be further demonstrated as he follows his rock to its final resting place, done by crouching over his slider foot and propelling himself with his free leg. Only an expert such as he could know exactly when to order the sweepers on or off the rock and you may see him do both several times during the rock's travel to the far rings. He will have made a bad shot if his rock stops six inches short or long or curls three inches too much or too little and his manner will reflect his dissatisfaction.

Now that you know how to recognize the expert curler you must commit to memory the unwritten rules that will govern your conduct in his presence.

1. After he has done his initial test slide, and if he gives the impression that he will accept introductions, you may shake his hand and tell him your name. Don't ask for his - you are expected to know it. And never, never, wish him luck for the game as it would imply that something other than skill could have an effect on his performance.

2. Keep your silence during the game and do not give the impression that you are enjoying yourself.

3. Bush your own shots so as not to draw attention from the expert and also to offset the extra time he requires for his deliberations.

4. If he wins, thank him for the curling lesson. If he loses, be properly humble and offer to buy him a drink.

Finally, do not be too intimidated by what I have written because there are only a few of these experts in any club and with luck you may curl the whole season without having to play any of them.

Good curling!

MINOR HOCKEY

The Norlitz Minor Hockey Association will officially open their 1968-69 season at 11:45 hours, 2 November. At this time, the Base Commander will drop the first puck for the PeeWee 'C' Canadians and Wings who will oppose each other to determine the winner of the first game of the season.

In order to ensure that each boy registered in the league can participate in his first scheduled game, it is requested that each parent check their sons' equipment and make certain that they have a helmet and guards on the rear of the skate blades. With regard to equipment, it may be of interest to know that over $950.00 has been spent on new and replacement sweaters and socks this year. Even so, some of the players' sweaters and socks are in an unsatisfactory condition. Unfortunately, the Minor Hockey Association is operating within a very tight budget this year, so we would ask all parents to impress upon their sons to utilize minor hockey equipment during hockey games - and not as general play clothing.

Suggestion for this issue of the 'Courier': That all players currently in possession of pucks belonging to minor hockey return them to the Equipment Manager. Over two-thirds of our initial supply has gone astray!

SENIOR HOCKEY

At a hockey meeting held last week, the committee decided to sponsor two leagues this season: Inter-Mess and Basse. There will be no inter-section competition. The Base League will be divided into the following teams - West (of the Lakehead), Ontario, Quebec, and the Maritimes.

Practices will be held at the following times:

- 8 November
  - Officers - 1300 - 1430
  - Sergeants - 1430 - 1600

No doubt all you night-lifers are well aware of the "in" places on the local strip but how many of you have made the rounds of the quaint and intimate little bistros of the strip. While the cuisine is not as sumptuous and the "tikker" rather undignified, the entertainment and decor provided by the management of these unique havens has a novelty only vaguely glimpsed in the opulence of the larger night clubs and hotels in the Lakeland area.

I wouldn't want to let everyone know about all these places, after all, everyone has their favourite hangout. Here they are, as usually known by the maitre d' and never need reservations. (Some of the regulars have their own reservations), I'll just tick off some of the better ones, and I'm sure a visit to any of them will give the man-about-town a night to remember.

These lesser known bistros are aimed at the "atmosphere" clientele who want a change of character and adventure in the places they choose for a night out. They are usually decorated to represent such places as a sidewalk cafe - a German Gasthaus - English pub - et al.

Possibly the most unique of this type of night spot in the area is downtown, at the corner of the theatre district and the Avenue of Boutiques. With the modern trend towards intriguing and unusual supper club names (the Hungry in San Francisco, Upstairs at the Downstairs in New York) this particular cafe has been named the "Coin Laundry".

A squat building with traditional, for this type of night spot, full length front windows, the "Coin Laundry" proprietors have been extremely tasteful in selecting the decor for their establishment. The pristine white furnishings have been carefully chosen to duplicate a well-known brand of commercial automatic washer, right down to the peeling chrome trim and laundry detergent stains around a real, working, top-loading door. In keeping with the decor very few chairs are provided, but cleverly executed tables with ingeniously realistic imitation-peeling laminated plastic tops have been strategically positioned to resemble the laundry tables usually chosen to duplicate such like. Such little touches, such as a torn pair of (Censored: Ed) hanging on a nail, chipped paint, and carefully executed dirt smudges on the door frames lend to the air of authenticity. It really looks like a laundromat.

A reverse on the old style "bottle club" is used to satisfy the palates of the patrons and no food service is provided. Patrons are expected to bring their own fare, and a brown paper bag, well crumpled to blend with the atmosphere, serves admirably as a container for a couple of Mother Hal's pizzas, and something wet. It's preferable to contain the wet in something solid since crumpled paper bags, plus pizza, provide little moisture control.

The "Coin Laundry" entertainment varies considerably in quality. Some of the better acts have been Mrs. Elspeth Galtreucher and her Living Bra, depicting the unfortunate misadventures of a laundress catching a loose shoulder support in a whirling washer, and "Mr. Butch Meek and his Twenty-Seven Sox." The latter act is an uncut gem of comedy wherein Mr. Meek depicts a harassed father of fourteen losing a single stocking in an unknown washing machine and proceeds to intervene into each patron's machine searching for the wayward sock. Naturally there are hilarious results and bedlam amongst the patrons as Meek uses pizzas and bottle after bottle from the imitation table washers. Before winding up, the wreckage of his braised body is deposited in comic pose in the street by one of the local braves, launders his hunting tent and truck tarpaulin in misanthropic passion in a joyful imbiber.

I'll let you in on at least two other "atmosphere bistros". The "Back Alley" behind the Red-and-some-other-coloured, where a truly stupendous job of suggesting a rural town back alley has been masterfully created by a consortium of entrepreneurs using little more than cast-off bottles, boxes and old crates; all skillfully blended with earthen floors and gumbo mudles to create the unique open-sky atmosphere. Not in the dining room class, the "Back Alley" nevertheless produces many unusual combinations of cocktails, aperitifs and white lightnin' for the casual after-hours visitor. The floor show is difficult to discuss since the paucity of lighting makes the action - which is rather static at best - difficult to see.

The other atmospheric bistro is similar to the "Back Alley" and also caters to the after-hours crowd. Called "The Lot" it is located at the head of the Avenue of Boutiques in front of a renowned Oriental restaurant. The atmosphere is more raucous and brightly lit, with the decor of puddles and gravel combining with the colourful automobiles of lubricated patrons to produce an exciting background for the who's-who of the local jet-set. Any evening will find Benny-the-Dig, Freddie-the-Faller, Buzzy-the-Rugged, or Hatchet Hattie at their accustomed places, or car-hopping with other celebrities.

So, if you're a little jaded from the normal plush and opulence available at the big name establishments and fancy a change, try some of the out-of-the-way spots. Your jade will brighten - your fancy will get tickled and a little rivulet never did anyone any harm.

Firemen special guests

At the Cold Lake and District Chamber of Commerce dinner meeting Friday 18 Oct. in the Curling Club, eight members of the Cold Lake Volunteer fire department and their wives were welcome guests of honour. The meeting had been planned for the previous week so the hosting of the fire fighters could coincide with National Fire Prevention Week. Circumstances beyond control had forced its postponement.

Guest speaker for the evening was Provincial Superintendent of fire services, Mr. Dick Beland. Mr. Beland paid tribute to the fire fighter, particularly the volunteer and in a short, amusing and very interesting talk covered the history of fire fighting equipment from its earliest records in the 4th century B.C. It is interesting to note that the basic tool of fire fighting i.e. water directed under pressure at the fire, was used then and is still in use today along with newer and more sophisticated methods. A sober fact introduced towards the end of his talk pointed out the importance of the one step before fire fighting, that of fire prevention. According to Mr. Beland, Alberta has the highest per capita fire loss of any province in Canada; a loss that is ultimately underwritten by every citizen of the province; a loss that we cannot continue to afford. So the future fire fighter may well be a roving fire preventer, seeking out and making citizens aware of hazardous situations and in this way helping to prevent fires, rather than a static body that remains on duty at a fire station, springing into action after a fire has started. In this way - educating the public to become fire hazard conscious - he may be of even greater value to his community. This is the role of the fire fighter of the future as Mr. Beland sees it and the plans of the whole provincial fire protection system are being geared toward that goal.

a man who had no feet

Reprinted from the Arrowhead Tribune (Lahr)

Passed an airman the other day who had obviously hurt his leg and was limping badly. My little boy was very interested in knowing what was wrong with him, but I, of course, could not supply the answer to his question, not knowing the man in question. Got me thinking.

The military community is made up of young, reasonably healthy individuals and their young, reasonably healthy wives and children. When a family is cut off from the civilian population such as here in Germany, because of the language problems, or in Canada (PMQs, DND schools, etc.) they see little in their everyday lives, of the afflictions and problems that some individuals bear.

I sometimes worry that my children are growing up without compassion for their fellow man. Of course, they feel sorry when another child is hurt, or when they see an adult limping, but they have yet to have a cerebral galaxy victim, a person paralyzed with polio or a bed ridden heart patient.

The world of a family with a very sick person in its midst can teach invaluable lessons to a child. The man who said, "I complained because I had no shoes, until I met a man who had no feet", was very wise. Children are basically self-centered and words don't mean much when they try to tell them that others find living through each day, a difficult chore. The child who knows another who lives with a very severe affliction, does not need to be told others are worse off, he knows! He does not need to have the beauty of a country walk, the joy of a ball game, or the fun of a week of camp, pointed out, he realizes how lucky he is.

Our children also are missing the experience good, and sometimes sad too, of knowing very old people. Grandparents they have, even though they do not see them often, but this is the fifty to sixty-five age group and not considered old. Seventy and eighty year olds are different. They are old times feeble, hard of hearing, poor sighted and slow of step and thought. This age group can be a joy to know, for someone who understands old people. They have the time and patience for a rambling conversation and if they are living a bit in the past, well, that too can make for interesting conversation sometimes.

Our children though, living in a young, fast environment are likely to find the very old and rather unlovely, repulsive, unless they are treated with respect, and most of all with compassion, through day to day contact. This is most easily taught at a young age. Children who grow up without a very old person for a friend are missing a wonderful experience.

Family income is another area where our children lack experience. In a DND school all the children are dressed more or less along the same lines. No poorly dressed children here. No child without mittens in cold weather, or without socks on their feet. We tend not to sympathize too much with the few, who because of mismanagement are not always dressed their best.

We know all the dads are making a decent living wage, just as we know that all the children have dads, that none are from a fatherless home.

Not so in a normal civilian school, where children from homes in every income bracket attend the same school. A really poor child has a hard time while he is growing up.

Children can be cruel and the suffering the child bears is not always just the lack of food, clothing and a good home. "The poor we have always with us", and we must learn to care that their lot in life is not always easy.

True compassion springs from the feeling of "There but for the grace of God, go I". The compassion felt, as a child for our next door neighbour, will grow to include the poor and needy countries of the world by the time we are adults. Modern communication has made every country our next door neighbour. They are all our responsibility.

In Canada, it is relatively simple to establish contact with those less fortunate than ourselves. In Europe it may be more difficult, but it can be done. Compassion is a two way street. It means you must give, but you also get immeasurable returns.

Let us not allow our children to grow up in a narrow uncaring world. Christmas is coming, a look around and watching out for some of the needs that will be brought forth in the next few months will, perhaps, provide many contacts and opportunities to show your children what compassion means. Then after Christmas is over, carry on, and keep those contacts if possible. Keep on caring.

The world is full of people who need someone to care and help. We need future citizens with compassion.

Fyodor Dostoevsky said it - Compassion is the chief law of human existence.

IN MEMORY

Canadian Forces Base Cold Lake and Grand Centre residents were saddened by the passing away of Warrant Officer Ralph Tupper, as a result of a tragic hunting accident, on the 19th of October, 1968.

Ralph was born at Scotts Bay in Nova Scotia, in 1928 and attended school there. He joined the R.C.A.F. in 1954 after three years service in the Canadian Army, and had served continuously since, in the Aircraft Finishing trade. Tup was active in both church and community affairs being a member of the United Church and a member of the Masonic Order. He was a lover of the great outdoors, a dedicated camper and fisherman, and a wonderful companion.

Ralph leaves behind to mourn his wife Norma, four children: Lenzie 16, Beverly 12, Kathy 10, and Randy 7; four brothers: Robert of Port Williams, N.S., Murray, sergeant at CFB Halifax, Les, a Warrant Officer at Camp Borden, and Curt of CFB Greenwood, N.S.; five sisters: Mrs. Emma Frost, South Alton, N.S.; Mrs. Hens Gates and Mrs. Alberta Woodworth, of Port Williams, N.S., Mrs. Ethel Hamilton of Gasqueton, N.B., and Mrs. Pat Hiltz, Ottawa.

He also leaves a host of good friends not only in Grand Centre and CFB Cold Lake, but at every base he has been stationed at.

Many thanks to the good friends of CFB Cold Lake and Grand Centre area who so willingly rendered their help in so many ways during our time of grief. We will never forget the many acts of kindness.

Murray, Les and Curt Tupper, Brothers of Ralph

My children and I can never express in words what the support we have received from Colonel Vincent, The Reverend Butler, Padre Howson, and our many wonderful friends has meant to us. These people have proven their friendship in our hours of need beyond words. A special thank-you to Tup's friends whom I previously may not have known, who have helped out so tremendously. The same heartfelt thanks to those who helped out with the children, the meals, and many other details.

The Norma Tupper and children Lenzie, Beverly, Kathy, and Randy.

1968 - 69 BEAVER STUDENT ...

The beginning of the Beaver River High 1968-69 school term has thus far witnessed a dramatic, exciting revival of that old deep-down feeling called school spirit. Probably the biggest and best example of the enthusiasm needed by Beaver students was displayed during the Student Union elections.

What is the Student Union? It is a fund-raising organization, based on a written constitution, set up and almost entirely controlled by students (it is not fully autonomous, for naturally all decisions and plans made must be approved by a staff advisor). Members include the entire student body and in the past, membership fees were charged. At the outset of each school year, the election of a new S.U. executive takes place. Prospective candidates for executive posts are nominated by other students. The only stipulations stated are that the president must be in Grade 12 and the vice-president in Grade 11. The treasurer and the secretary may be from any of Grades 10, 11, or 12. In addition to these elected representatives, voted upon by the whole student body, one representative from each individual home room. The annual institution of a Student Union is a privilege that most students take for granted. The S.U. provides invaluable monetary assistance for all student activities, as well as supporting many charitable causes both financially and morally. Its real success or failure, however, is always dependent upon student support.

This year, as election campaigns got into full swing, it became increasingly more obvious that rivalry between individuals was not the name of the game. The brightly-coloured signs and placards displayed about the school were representative of much, much more—school spirit, much more—school spirit.

At last, riding a wave of enthusiasm, Beaver had broken out of its cocoon, had yanked away its lethargy, had stretched its new wings confidently. Amid the eagerness of great expectations, an executive was chosen.

The new Student Union executive consists of four capable individuals. Working as a unit, they hold every ingredient for a smashing success:

Pres. - Gerry Bell - enough personal drive and enthusiasm to carry him through any crisis

V - Pres. - Paul Brewer, cool and confident

Sec. - Cyndy Fallis - energy, energy, energy.

Treas. - Gilles Caron - a desire and determination to succeed.

To this new executive I wish all the best of luck and under your leadership, may the Student Union soar to new heights of success. I feel sure that, this year, the executive will live up to its potential.

Beaver is looking up, aiming high; to all observers: just watch us fly!

PMQ housewife to CF carpenter: "It must have been the family living here before that sent for you, but they moved out over six months ago."

Notice in a Scot church: "Those in the habit of putting buttons instead of coins in the collection plate will please put in their own buttons and not buttons from the cushions on the pews."

Bits and Pieces

by SHELLAH

Hallow'en - and the children are anxious to be going "Trick or Treat-ing". The big night - anything from singing all that free candy -- but I can't help remembering what it used to be like when I was a child.

We used to practice for a couple of weeks before the big night - anything from singing and dancing to reciting poetry - usually Burns'. We knew that if we didn't perform, then there would be no treat. Everyone joined in the fun. At some houses, after you had sung your song, you still had more work to do for your treat if it happened to be an apple. Those houses had a tub full of water with apples floating in it and everyone had to "duck" for your apple. Luckily most of those ladies also supplied a bathing cap, or quite a few children would have ended up with pneumonia!

I've tried asking a few children to do something for their treat, but in most cases all I get are blank stares. After all, I'm holding them up in their quest to see who gets the most candy. Our "haunting" was more leisurely. We went up and down our own street only, and some of the old people used to tell us stories and superstitions, so that we would go back out into the dark street, jumping at every noise. Most of my Hallow'ens were spent in Scotland during the war years so we had no street lights or house lights to guide us. It certainly helps you feel spooky feeling left by the old ladies and their stories.

They told us that this was the night when witches, devils and other mischief-making beings were out on their mad doings. It was also supposed to be a night when you could find out the name of the person you were to marry.

Most of the superstitions are very out of date but I'll quote a couple; one you can try for yourself and another just because it sounds mysterious, and also because they were written by my favourite poet - Burns.

Take a candle, and go alone to a looking-glass; eat an apple before it, and comb your hair all the time; the face of your conjugal companion, to be, will be seen in the glass, as if peeping over your shoulder.

Whoever would, with success, try this spell, must observe these directions: - Steal oil, all alone; to the kiln, and, darning, throw into the pot a clue of blue yarn; wind it in a clue off the old one, and towards the latter end, something will hold the thread; demand "wha hands?" that is, who holds? An answer will be returned from the kiln-not by naming the Christian and surname of your future spouse.

That one might be fun to try if I knew what he was talking about.

BEEHIVE THRIFT SHOP

Many people on the base know the Beehive Thrift Shop. It was started over two years ago as a joint project by the Catholic Women's League and the Protestant Ladies' Guild to provide a place where people could sell items they no longer need at a reasonable price.

The price of an item is decided by the seller and if it is sold the Thrift Shop takes 10% of the sale price as commission. This 10% commission is divided equally between the CWL and the Protestant Guild. Some months this amounts to a good sum of money but often the amount earned hardly seems worth the amount of time spent there by the ladies.

There are about nine ladies from both Guilds who give their time to this project. The Thrift Shop is open twice a week - Tuesdays from 1:30 to 2:30 p.m. and Thursday evenings from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. When there is a rummage sale, this involves more hours of work for these busy ladies, and of course the fact that meticulous records have to be kept keeps some of them busy with book-keeping for more hours. A rough estimate of hours spent there since Sept. 1967 gives a total of close to 2500 hours. If the ladies were being paid for their time, this would average out to about 35¢ an hour. Instead, all commissions go to the Guilds and the ladies take time to work there just to help their respective Guilds, knowing how much the money is needed for various projects of both the CWL and Protestant Guilds.

We would like the ladies to know that their help is not just taken for granted but is appreciated both by the CWL and Protestant Ladies Guild as well as by the ladies who make use of the Thrift Shop.

The FUN of it All

by Denise Smith
Each year, initiations provide a lot of fun for everyone, except may be the Grade 10s. But why should older high school students worry themselves over the amusement of such lowly scum? It is up to the Grade 10s to better themselves in the world first, before they can enjoy the finer things in life. For one day every year, however, (initiation day), the benevolent juniors and seniors do offer these outcasts an opportunity for advancement, instead of showing their gratitude with full cooperation, Grade 10s actually resent this chance to be ridiculed, humiliated, and generally contaminated - with peanut butter, eggs, flour, onions, mustard, shoe polish, lipstick and other common instruments for the destruction of pride.

GERRY BELL nurse ding-a-ling

The whole process of initiation finds its beginning in the school auditorium. Here, for all to see, a slave auctioneer takes bids on a row of randomly-shaped legs protruding beneath the stage curtain. Money exchanges hands (this year as much as $9.00 per half dozen) and each motley string of dejected humanity is marched onto the main floor for resale by their new master. After the buying and selling is completed, the actual "fun" begins. Remembering their own miserable conditions when in Grade 10, the masters get their revenge. The majority of the slaves obey all orders, possible or impossible, fearful of the dreaded "Kangeroo Court".

Some scums, along with a few of the more "cruel" masters, must always face ludicrous "Kangeroo Court". For serious crimes, like talking back to his master, any of the slaves can expect one of various kinds of "shampoos" with raw eggs, rotten tomatoes, cold, slimy porridge, and stringy spaghetti. Modelled after Canada's own legal system, the judge and twelve jurors are always fair, so occasionally charges against the slave are dismissed and the master receives full punishment instead. In fact, even members of the court provide good targets for a few well-aimed eggs.

With the closing of Kangeroo Court, initiations end. The Gr. 10s have been put through a hard ordeal, rougher for some than for others. All involved should keep in mind that this is not the first nor the last time such an event will occur for anyone, including themselves.

YOU HAVE A CHOICE

by Major R. H. Howson
God gives to you and to me the freedom of our will, so that day by day we decide the things we shall do; the thoughts we shall think; the kind of life we shall live. The most important decision we must make is in the matter of faith. We must decide what we believe, and the standards by which we live.

As a further follow-up, the reporter whisked himself over to the Base CE section to find the reason for such a structure. It was a simple matter to find out. Hiding himself behind a door, he waited for the fellow CE officer to return from a conversation between a CE officer and his warrant officer.

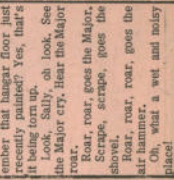

Just last week, an ever-alert reporter reported that he was skulking around No. 4 Han gar where 454 OTS hangs out. You may remember that the OTS is normally our problem child. The reporter's interest in this subject was that made the front page last issue.

The efforts were amply rewarded, as can be observed in the picture above. He recently pointed out, "Yes, that's it being torn up."
