Commander
CFB Winnipeg

COL. M.D. Gates

As we approach the Christmas holiday and the year's end and pause to reflect on the year past I know that you will all agree with me that it has been a busy year for all people on the Base. In spite of many difficulties and often a shortage of people, we have met our goals in our training and support activities. There have been extra hours of work for many, and many others have served for lengthy periods away from home, in Montreal, Alert, Danaca and Cyprus, and still others forfeited leave. All of us can be well satisfied with our work, with an extra measure added for those efforts that contributed safety and well being to our fellow men. Our work on the floods helped prevent disaster right here in our own community, and many hours were given to searches for missing people. The Olympics were free of troubles, and Cyprus and the Middle East continue to be peaceful. All of these achievements should help you to know in full measure the joy of Christmas.

But it must be that those same contributions mean some of our members will be absent from home at this time of family gatherings and celebrations. I know that all of you who are together as families join me in regretting the absence of others and in consoling them with the thought that their efforts ensure the continued peace and hope of many hundreds elsewhere in our troubled world.

To all of you, wherever you may be, may I wish you a happy and peaceful Christmas.

*Merry

Commander
Air Command

L GEN. W.K. Carr

In addition to being the most significant religious holiday of the year, Christmas is a time when our thoughts turn quite naturally to our families and friends. It is a time of good fellowship and a time of fond memories. It is a time for reunions with loved ones, for some, not seen since the previous Christmas or even before.

To those of you who, through the "exigencies of the service", will be unable to spend this Christmas with your loved ones I extend a special greeting and my assurance that your personal sacrifice and devotion to duty is appreciated.

In looking back over 1976 we should all be proud of the progress Air Command has made. I am very proud too, of the contribution made by all of you toward this progress. A real team effort!

In looking forward to 1977 I see a year that offers new challenge, new opportunities and the prospect of still further progress.

To all of you and your families, my wife and I extend sincere best wishes for a happy Christmas and a New Year which will be the best yet.

Thank you and God Bless you.

CDS Clarifies Army New Re-Structuring

Canada chief of the defence staff, Gen. J. A. Dextraze, says recent decisions to shift army elements within the country is a move to achieve a better balance to meet military requirements. He says he did "not believe that the posture of army field formations in Canada was in balance with military requirements".

The GEN. made his remarks to reports in Brussels, Dec. 7, where he is attending a NATO Defence Planning Committee Meeting with Defence Minister Barney Danson.

GEN. Dextraze said that the adjustment of army formations

"is a result of a military appreciation of a military requirement", in planning Canada's total land-force structure requirements, and that it will result in more flexibility and manpower savings, by diverting more punch to the sharp end.

He made the statement to clarify reaction to the decision to move the Canadian Airborne Regiment next summer from Edmonton to CFB Petawawa, Ont.

The GEN. described as "undesirable" the current troops. He said that it will also structure whereby a combat group and an airborne regiment is located in the west, a small combat group in the centre, and a combat group in Quebec, with an independent battalion in the maritimes. He said the problem will be resolved by redeploying the land forces in a more balanced posture, permitting "better use of total force capabilities".

Under the new structure, a brigade group still be stationed in Calgary; one in the east, at CFB Valcartier, near Quebec City; and a quick-reaction regimental combat group in the centre, at Petawawa.

He explained that the regimental combat group in central Canada, at Petawawa, "will be an airborne and air-portable formation, and will be formed by combining units of the current airborne regiment with those of 2 combat group", already at Petawawa. By amalgamating these two formations, he explained, a manpower saving in the support area will be achieved, which will be distributed to the "sharp end", meaning combat result in "more efficient support" to the new formation than currently is available to either of the two existing formations.

The defence chief pointed out that he is "responsible to the government and people of Canada to maintain operationally-effective forces" to defend Canada, and also discharge this country's international commitments.

"At the same time", he added, quote I am also responsible to my troops, to ensure that they are organized, equipped, trained and postured to best accomplish their missions."

He said the plan he had developed "fully discharged" his responsibilities, and that he intended "to stand by it."

He said that he had recommended the move "only after due consideration to all of the relevant factors" he must consider "when planning Canada's total land-force structure requirements."

Because the "move had infrastructure implications", he said that he "asked the minister of national defence to obtain government concurrence to implement the plan".

He expressed surprise at the opposition to the plan in some quarters, saying that he had "spoken openly about it on numerous occasions" in public, in speeches across the country, to the conference of defence associations last January, and to the officers and men of the Canadian Airborne Regiment.

GEN. Dextraze said that "it would have been easy to disband the airborne regiment and disperse the men to other formations. However," he said, "we have a requirement for an airborne component, as one element in our general-purpose force package."

"We have achieved a high level of expertise in this field over the past eight years," he said, "but an airborne regiment is extremely costly to maintain if dedicated solely to handle quick-reaction situations that require light forces." He said that he wanted to make clear that "parachuting is only one method of inserting troops into operations", and that he could not, in his judgement, "afford to have any one Canadian Forces formation become unduly specialized."

Christmas Message From Your Chaplains

All the Chaplains of CFB Winnipeg would like to take this opportunity to wish all of you joy and peace this Christmas and in the New Year serenity and hope.

Many things are written and said at this time of year about the meaning of Christmas. Some people tell us that Christmas is a family day or that it is a day for the children. In a sense they are right. It is a time when families get together, when the joy of family life seem to rise above the mundane things that disrupt family harmony and cause distress.

Christmas is more than all this. It is more than festivities and celebrations: it is more than Santa Claus and presents. It is more than sick stomachs and sore heads. It is the remembrance of that one event that is the watershed of history; that one event that divides history between B.C. and A.D. It is the remembrance that one event wherein the infinite and eternal broke into space and time in the person of a peasant baby born in a barn. The infinite and eternal God broke into human history in the person of a flesh and blood Jesus of Nazareth.

This Jesus went on to reveal to mankind the length, breadth, height and depth of God's love. It is a love that would bear a cross and forgive: it is a love that offers hope to those in despair, comfort to those in distress, joy to those who sorrow, peace to those who are in a turmoil. It is a love that loves us when we are most unloving; it is a love that, if we accept it, makes us love ourselves when we are least inclined to do so.

As we once again come to this Christmas celebration, may the love of God revealed in Jesus Christ fill us all with love, joy, serenity and peace.

CWL (South) News

Nearly everyone is caught up in the Christmas rush at this time but for some of our CWL members it even busier this year than usual. We have many activities planned for this time of year.

At the end of November we obtained, through some of our contacts, furniture for the Sister Leslie Project, which will in future be referred to as Rossbrook House. We also arranged for the transportation of this furniture from the Fred Astaire Dance Studio to Rossbrook House. Two of our husbands were good enough to donate their time and one also donated the use of the family van to this worthwhile project.

Sunday, December 5th, we had a very stimulating meeting. We were very happy to welcome three non-members who were interested in seeing how the CWL worked. Two of them have decided to join our ranks. Besides the usual business; reports from the different committees and plans for future projects, we had a presentation, including slides and a record, on the Advent Liturgy and the true spirit of Christmas. It was a good reminder as many of us tend to forget it in the commercial whirl that surrounds us.

To enliven our social hour we invited a speaker from the Macrame Hut to come and give us a lesson on macrame. We all found it very interesting and several of us are planning to take more lessons after Christmas. The ladies worked on their projects with such enthusiasm that many did not reach home until nearly midnight causing some husbands to wonder what had happened to their wives. CWL meetings don't usually last that long.

On Thursday, December 9th, eight of us got together to pay a visit to the veterans at Deer Lodge. We brought them a record player, donated by Angela Murphy, the daughter of one of our members. We also brought them several records, one of Christmas music. They were very happy to see us and showed their appreciation upon receiving these donations. We hope to visit them again before Christmas.

This week, December 15th, to be precise, we will be bringing our donations of money, books and comics, playing cards etc. to Rossbrook House. Further mention of this will be made in the next Voxair.

We will also be holding our Christmas party this week.

May I take this opportunity to wish all of our members, their families and all our readers a very Merry Christmas and the best for the coming New Year.

 NAV By T. G. BREMNER SQN

Despite my departure from the scene to catch up on a little leave, there doesn't seem to be an awful lot of news lying around loose. Nobody even puts cryptic little notes on my desk anymore. Therefore, there will be no news this week - we'll stick to old rumours, forecasts and outright lies. Mel and I will really have to produce this time around to make up for the total lack of CFANS input to the last VOXAIR - I didn't tell him that I'd be away and he didn't tell me that he wasn't writing either. Sorry 'bout that, Editor, hope you weren't discomfited. (Or did we leave you enough space for something else for a change?)

We've thinned the ranks a wee bit again now that 7602 has finally left the fold - if the loss of four can be called thinning? At least there is one empty classroom and a few "liberated" instructors to take the pressure off of some of the others who are caught in the periods of very heavy flying and synthetic training. Obviously though, there is some sandbagging going on somewhere - Reaume keeps making the rounds through our end of the hall looking for volunteers to take the night and week-end details. (Maybe he's heard of the Transport SOP? You know, the one about the mushrooms that are kept in the dark?) 7603 and 7604 are now busy fighting it out to see which is the "senior" course. '03 is a bunch of grey-haired, decrepit old cross-trainees and naturally stick to the old saw of age taking precedence to beauty. On the other hand, '04 is actually ahead in the training program because of the lead-off that they had from the last couple of summers on phase training - then too, most of them were my students last year and they all know what a mean . . . I was - they think all instructors are like that, so they work like crazy. The new year may show which wins out.

The recent Mess Dinner was a pleasant change of pace from the usual five-day grind and a fine time was had by all. There were lots of the new tartan cumberbunds on display amongst the black, white, red, gold, etc., etc., etc. I'm still trying to figure out why the multi-coloured version is so expensive. Three times the cost of the black satin job that I bought a few years back, and it doesn't even have an adjustable waistband. Despite the design deficiencies and the cost, I must admit that the tartan is distinctive and eye-catching. Now, if we can figure out how to add a gold belt diagonally across one shoulder, gold encrusted shoulder boards, three inch silver trim down the pant legs and large rowelled spurs for our jack boots we may have a real space-age tuxedo.

The annual CFANS Christmas Party was, I mean, it really WAS! I'm sure that it was 'cause I had "that certain feeling" on Sunday morning and I happen to know that a lot of other people shared the sentiment. Unfortunately, the Party Co-ordinator, Lorne Sayell was unable to attend and so missed the fruits of his labours. Sorry you couldn't make it, Lorne, it was a very, very pleasant evening. WELL DONE! There were only a few minor injuries - Mel Felts, Wayne Reaume, Glenn Nelson, Gord Dow, Bob Hill, THE BOSS, part of Course 7604, Al Steele, Jim McBride, Pete Kendell and yours truly all (at separate moments) tangled with the hole in the dance floor with resultant lower extremity trauma. We should have expected it, but the hole has moved since the last dance - as soon as one spot gets glued down again, it pops up somewhere else.

It would appear that all the required "duty days" and special flights over the holiday period have been manned to everyone's satisfaction (more or less). The duty telephone answerers will undoubtedly find it strangely quiet around the place, but should have no trouble finding some useful work to keep themselves busy. Most of the flight crews won't have too much in the way of excitement either as many of the flights are to the same old places, but they will have the satisfaction of knowing that they are helping to get a lot of people home to see their families over the festive season. There will be one or two jam trips to such exotic spots as Elmendorf, but as luck would have it, these specials are pretty well dedicated to the transport augmentation crews. The selected staff members are now required to maintain an operational category, thus necessitating a check ride and regular continuation flying.

My typewriter is slowly disintegrating due to old age and overwork and they're here to take it away to wherever old typewriters go. If you don't hear from me again (STOP the cheering!) you'll know that they wrote the old beast off and didn't give me a replacement.

Y'all have a nice holiday now, hear? Keep 'er safe, watch for drunks, trucks, hydro poles and ALERT checks!!
MERRY CHRISTMAS AND A VERY HAPPY NEW YEAR!!!!

North Site Community Council News

The last meeting of Council for 1976 was held on Wednesday, December 8th. Captain Crowell pointed out that the end of the year marked the "retirement" of two more members of Council who have almost completed their terms of office and extended his sincere thanks for their efforts. CPL. Wayne Craig, Sports Councillor, was warmly commended for his dedicated attention to all facets of minor sports - baseball, hockey, week-end recreation, etc. CAPT. Terry Bremner, Publicity Councillor, also leaves Council as of 31 December 76.

President's note: Terry has done an outstanding job linking Council to the community by means of the frank, informative, quality written Voxair articles. CAPT. Bremner's dedicated participation in all Council matters will be difficult to replace.)

SGT. Robertson of the Base Recreation section (BPERO) attended the meeting and gave a brief rundown on the proposed Winter Carnival that is presently in the planning stages. It is hoped that this event will be held in mid-February, running from Friday to Sunday. A week-end full of fun and entertainment, this year's effort will be intended primarily for adult participation and will probably involve competitions between the three messes of the North Site. The Community Council endorses the project and will undertake to support the carnival to the best of its ability. MCPL. Dave Honsinger, the incoming Sports Councillor will be the primary liason between Council and the "carnival committee" once it is established.

Council had earlier received its first official complaint regarding a pet problem in the community and took the opportunity to exercise the new control system. The proforma letter was sent to the resident involved and immediate remedial action was taken to correct the situation. The co-operation of the pet owner is sincerely appreciated. If all other animal owners in the community acted as quickly and responsibly, our neighbourhood would become a much more pleasant area.

Several members of Council commented upon the landscaping work that has been done in the BLHU areas in the past couple of months, with particular reference to the recent DRO entries regarding resident liability for the care of the new sod. It was pointed out that the contractor used a very poor grade of underfill, sod was often left stacked for days before installation, and, installation in some cases was generally poor with wide gaps left between sod strips. Council agreed that it seemed unreasonable to hold a resident responsible for grass that was already dead when it was laid, and has made a recommendation that the landscaping be inspected in the spring. In this way it is hoped that residents will not be unfairly penalized for lawn damage.

In response to a request from the Figure Skating Club, Council approved the expenditure of $45.00 to defray the operating expenses of the club up to 31 December 76. The Council was very pleased to note that almost forty people are active participants in the Figure Skating Club.

The question of police patrols in the BLHU area was again brought up at the meeting. Recently, careless, negligent driving and improper parking have become more prevalent. Cases of vehicular traffic across lawns and through park areas are blatantly obvious when the tire tracks are literally torn into the grass. (We're not talking about driving onto the grass to wash the car, but high speed "shortcuts" almost onto the doorsteps of the residences.) Deliberate spinning of automobiles on snow-covered roads has also been witnessed. These practices are not only downright stupid, they're DANGEROUS!! The President will contact the City of Winnipeg Police Department and request that they begin to patrol the area as soon as possible. You, as residents, can do your part too by reporting this type of behaviour to the authorities. Note also, that illegal parking in no parking zones is a hazardous practice that must be stopped, especially in the winter months when roads are poor and visibility already reduced by the elements.

The Festive Season is almost upon us again and the President and Council wish to extend to all residents of the North Site Community their very best wishes for a safe and happy holiday. Please drive carefully, party with discretion and obey the principles of fire prevention - we don't want to find anyone of you listed among the casualties in the new year!

MISCONCEPTIONS ABOUT LECITHIN

Q. Is lecithin useful for reducing body weight and lowering blood cholesterol?

A. Lecithin has not been found effective in lowering blood cholesterol or reducing body weight. Despite this fact lecithin continues to be promoted as a heart disease preventative and as an aid for weight reduction. Beware - lecithin performs no miracles or magic.

Lecithin is a phospholipid (a fat-like substance) and is found widely in foods (mainly eggs and seeds such as soybean). It is a natural constituent of all cell membranes and is manufactured for this purpose by the body.

All the lecithin we can use is made in the body. When an excess of lecithin is provided from outside the body, by food or pills, the body breaks it down and either burns it for energy or excretes it in the urine. Therefore money spent on lecithin pills is of no value.

Lecithin is involved in fat transport. However, lecithin does not, as some fad diets suggest, "keep fat moving right off you" or "simply shifts your weight around to where you want it," or "streamlines lumpy thighs".

Lecithin is an emulsifier. This means that it prevents oil and water from separating. This is the reason why many processed foods have lecithin added. However, using lecithin in this way is not harmful to the body.

A constituent of lecithin is choline, considered to be an essential vitamin for some animals. It is probably not a dietary essential for man because the body can make choline. If the diet is adequate in protein, choline can be made with help from one of the amino acids (methionine) found in protein. For this reason choline is not one of the "hardest to get" vitamins, contrary to popular belief.

In addition, a human deficiency of choline is unknown. No one has reported a person suffering from a choline deficiency. In fact, the best efforts to produce choline deficiency in man have failed.

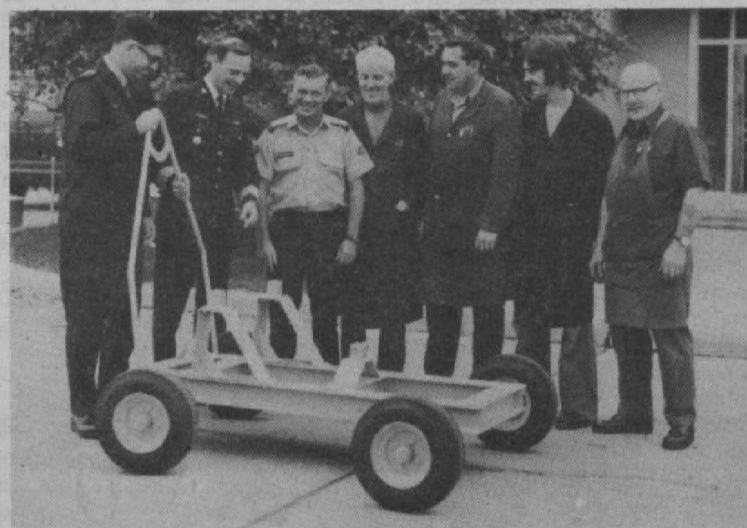

UNDE

Our new president informs us that the first General Meeting in the New Year will be held on the evening of Monday, 10th January 1977, at 7:30 P.M. in the Boardroom of the PSAC, 902 St. James Street. We will have the pleasure of a guest speaker Captain George Simmons who is the Base Drug Education Co-Ordinator. Captain Simmons will speak for approximately one-half hour. All your questions will be answered.

PATRICIA REPORT

PATRICIA REPORT

The two weeks since the last Patricia Report have seen a flurry of activity within the battalion. On the training side, all the rifle companies have taken advantage of the cold and snow and have been deeply involved in brushing up on "Arctic Fox" - type skills. In addition, large scale purges have begun to raise the battalions' level of musketry skill and physical fitness.

For those who are interested, a moment of history is upon us. For the last couple of weeks those venerable old work horses, the 3/4 ton trucks, have been dragged out of our transport compound and been retired from service. The passing of the 3/4 is a sad thing. Those vehicles, probably the best of their type once upon a time, are being retired after more years of service than some of us have in life. In their place comes a new vehicle; the 1 1/4 (or 5/4 ton) chevrolet truck. These vehicles are filtering in now and these arrivals has raised the requirement for the battalion to run driver conversion courses, which for the most part, are now completed.

Besides this active training and housekeeping, the Messes have been busy. In fact, there is some suspicion that the recent social activity has been a cleverly disguised user trial for the Christmas season.

The Officers' Mess was the scene of a very successful Combat Arms Luncheon, attended by the bulk of the Combat Arms Officers in the Winnipeg area. In addition, the normal Happy Hours were run and the first of many Candlelight Dinners was held.

The Warrant Officers' and

Sergeants' Mess had, in addition to its normal functions, a turkey shoot. The scores of this shoot are used in the annual competition for the silver shovel, awarded to the worst shot in the Mess. The "Winner" of the award will be announced at a later date.

A new institute opened on the 1st of December; a Master Corporals' Mess. This is a six month trial and, if successful, will become a permanent fixture. It shares the Patricia Arms with the Junior Ranks Club, but has a separate lounge and bar.

The Junior Ranks Club held a bingo and dance on the 10th of December and a dance on the 11th. Both events, at which Blue Crystal played, were well attended.

Since there will be no other chance, I would like to wish all our faithful readers a very Merry and Safe, Christmas, on behalf of all ranks of the battalion. See you after Christmas.

PPCLI Christmas Dinner

Winnipeg - LT.-GOV. F.L. Jobin joined the officers and senior non-commissioned officers in serving a traditional Christmas dinner to members of the 2nd Battalion Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry (2PPCLI) at the men's mess Kapyong Barracks Dec. 17.

Following a benediction, the commanding officer, LT.-COL. J.E.L. Gollner and LT.-GOV. Jobin carved the turkey and served the most junior members of the unit. A private from each company joined them at the head table while the battalion's Corps of Drums provided musical entertainment.

The LT.-GOV. has formed a close relationship with the Patricias and joined them in celebrating the 25th anniversary of the Battle of Kapyong this spring. He also visited 2 PPCLI during their recently completed tour with the United Nations in Cyprus.

HOW TO JUMP A BATTERY

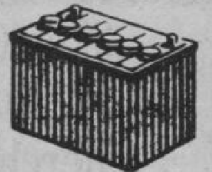

A battery can be safely jumped using the procedures outlined below. Otherwise there is a danger of the battery exploding and spraying sulphuric acid over anyone nearby.

1 Place the two cars so the battery cables reach. Make sure the cars are not touching. Shift both cars into neutral or park and set the parking brake. Turn off ignitions and all accessories.

2 Make sure the batteries are the same voltage. (Six volt batteries have three filler vents, 12 volt batteries have six.)

3 Remove filler caps and top up batteries with water, if necessary. Do not try to start a car with a frozen battery.

4 Place a cloth over uncapped vent holes of both batteries.
5 Identify the positive terminal of both batteries. These are colored red, or have a "+", "P" or "pos" written on the battery case, post or clamp.

6 Attach one jumper cable between the two positive terminals.*

7 Attach one end of the second jumper cable to the negative terminal of the booster battery and the other end to some part of the engine in the car being started. This final connection should be at least a foot from the battery (to avoid sparks which could cause an explosion) and must be on a piece of metal that is not painted, chrome-plated, heavily rusted or coated with grease.

8 Try to start the car. If it fails to start immediately, start the car holding the booster battery so it will not run down.

9 After the car with the discharged battery is running normally, remove the cable connection at the engine block first, then the other end of the same cable from the booster battery. Remove the second cable by disconnecting at the booster battery first.

CFB Winnipeg Team Visits CFS Churchill

The annual CFB Winnipeg Staff Visit to CFS Churchill was carried out during the period 05-08 Oct. 76. The CFB Winnipeg team, lead by the Base Technical Services Officer, LCOL. J. E. McNeil, took advantage of the inaugural 429 Squadron Service Flight between Winnipeg and Churchill to visit the Churchill Site and discuss the interface between Base Winnipeg and the Station which, since the inception of Air Command, has been an Integral Unit of CFB Winnipeg. A point of discussion of particular interest to both Base and Station personnel was the proposal to relocate the Station operation into new accommodations."

The proposed allocation of floor space in the new accommodation was the subject of lively discussion. The BCEO, MAJ. Orlando, is shown explaining the proposal to interested Base and Station personnel (BASE PHOTO)

Larry Edwards likes paying with cheques not for them.

Paying by cheque, Larry can keep a clear record of where his money goes. What used to burn him up was paying for the cheques he paid his bills with! Larry's like most of us. He isn't going to spend any more than he has to. And he found that most no-charge chequing plans were only 'no-charge' to a point. Some places put a limit on the minimum balance in your account. Others add the cost of your 'no-charge' cheques to your statement. So, when Larry heard about ASTRA's absolutely free chequing plan, he talked to the money managers at ASTRA. He discovered that when ASTRA says 'free', it means 'free'! No minimum balance required. No added charges to your statement.

ASTRA, like Larry, believes paying by cheque is a great way to keep track of your spending. And you should pay nothing for your cheques. Open a free chequing account at ASTRA. You'll be glad you did. Ask Larry.

What can Astra do for you?
Ask the people they did something for.

Merry Sweeney

music reviews and syndicated columnist

Hank 'n' me

In the twenty-nine years that Hank Williams lived, he touched many lives in many different ways. He left an impact on the music world that is still being felt today, almost twenty-three years after his death. In the four years, between his January 1949 recording of "Lovesick Blues" to his December 1952 release, "I'll Never Get Out Of This World Alive", Williams sold in excess of ten million records.

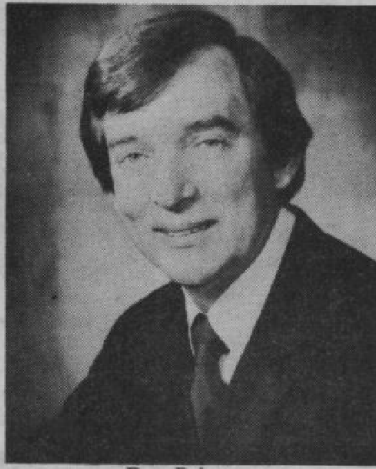

Some of his greatest hits, like: "Kaw Liga", "Your Cheating Heart", "Take These Chains From My Heart", "I Won't Be Home No More" and "Weary Blues From Waiting", were all released in 1953, shortly after his death.

Hank Williams was born in a log cabin, in the area near Mount Olive, Alabama on September 17, 1923 and died in the back seat of a chauffeur driven Cadillac limousine, near Oak Hill, West Virginia on January 1, 1953. His music touched more people than any other writer or singer. His songs have been recorded by everyone from Tony Bennett to Johnny Cash. There's hardly a country singer that hasn't released an album of Hank's music. He was elected to the Country Music Hall of Fame in 1961. There's been a movie which chronicled his life, many books written about him and countless songs which tell of his greatness. CHEROKEE COWBOY

Yes, Hank Williams touched many lives. He helped many people and pointed many on the road to stardom. One such singer that received a gigantic boost from Hank, was Raymond Noble Price of Perryville, Texas. Known as 'The Cherokee Cowboy', Price had already established himself on the 'Big D' Jamboree, but, it was the 'Opry' which meant true stardom.

It was Williams that opened the door for Price to join the Opry, and it was Hank that told audience after audience about a new, up and coming hitmaker, Ray Price. It was Hank that took Ray Price on the road with him and let him use his band, The Drifting Cowboys. Hank and Ray were friends that went fishing together and shared a house in Nashville. It was Ray that was the sounding board for many of the songs Hank wrote, and now twenty-three years later, it's Ray Price the one-time Cherokee Cowboy who graduated to the lush string styling that has recorded an album of Hank Williams' music.

The songs chosen are probably ones that Ray heard long before Hank's public. At least, that's true with "Jambalaya", which Hank told Ray he could record first, but later changed his mind and recorded it himself. The songs, like: "Your Cheating Heart", "Hey, Good Looking", "I Can't Help It" and "I'm So Lonesome I Could Cry" are all classics and Ray has done them in his own unique style, backed by a complete string section. With the same haunting sound that launched Enrico Morriconi's, "Good, Bad and Ugly", Price delivers "Kaw Liga" with a surrealistic, and at times almost swirling sound.

While many singers have released albums of Hank's songs, many of those were released either for their commercial appeal or to help a faltering career. Because of Hank and Ray's deep friendship this is not the case with the Price release. What Ray Price has done with "Hank 'n' Me" (ABC/Dot 2062) is pay homage to the legend he knew as a friend.

"SILENT KILLER STALKING NATION"

Over two million people in Canada have this disease. One-half of them don't know it, one-quarter know it but are not seeking treatment, and one-eighth are not getting adequate treatment. Only one-eighth, or 250,000 people are receiving adequate treatment for their condition.

The condition? High blood pressure which is a major contributing factor to stroke, heart attack, or kidney failure.

Happily, high blood pressure can be controlled with your doctor's help, and your cooperation. Plan to visit your doctor annually and ask him to check your blood pressure. If you are aware that you have high blood pressure, cooperate with your doctor in controlling it.

For more information about (high) blood pressure, write: Manitoba Heart Foundation, 301-352 Donald Street, Winnipeg, Manitoba, R3B 2H8, and ask for their free publications: High Blood Pressure, How Can High Blood Pressure Hurt You?, Understanding (High) Blood Pressure, and How You Can Help Your Doctor Treat High Blood Pressure.

Winner of the recent "Champagne Weekend" draw was MAJ. Jim Shenk, USAF Exchange Officer at CFANS, shown here receiving his prize from CAPT. Don McDonald, of 429 Sqn. MAJ. Shenk's prize consists of an all expense paid weekend trip for two to Minneapolis - St. Paul plus $100 cash. Although a trip to the US may not sound like much of a prize of a USAF Officer, both he and his wife are delighted; MAJ. Shenk was raised in St. Paul, but has not been back for over twenty years. Proceeds from the draw will help provide metallic castings of the heraldic crests of present and former Units of CFB Winnipeg. The crests will be placed on the Memorial Wall of the National Aviation Museum in Ottawa.

ENJOYING THE CHRISTMAS SIGNERY

1. In a Department Store: "MAKE THIS A CHRISTMAS HE WON'T FORGET - CHARGE EVERYTHING"
2. In a Reducing Salon: "15 SHAPING DAYS TILL CHRISTMAS"
3. In a Gift Shop: "SANTA CLUES"

HIGH WAYS: A Texas millionaire purchased a swimming pool as a Christmas present for his daughter. Then, to give added enjoyment to the gift, he invited many of the neighbourhood eligible bachelors for a swim. "Oh thank you for the pool, Daddy," cooed the daughter, "And I see that you've stocked it too!"

PARANOIA IN PARADISE -

In an asylum for the mentally insane, one patient was dressed exactly like Santa Claus - to make the resemblance even more striking, he sported a white Santa Claus beard. "Who said that you could be Santa?" asked one of the assorted nuts. "God did", was the reply. "I did not!" retorted another of the patients.

NOT THE RITE THING -

"At the office Christmas party", said the beautiful blond, "Santa Claus proposed to me, and now I'm mad at him!" "It isn't everyday that a girl receives a proposal", cautioned her amused friend, "I should think that you'd be happy about it." "You should have heard what he proposed!" retorted blonde.

FROM THE SEMENIUK CLAN TO YOU AND YOURS -
"May your home be filled with laughter not only at Christmas but also for each and every day of the New Year... Merry Christmas and a 'Happy' New Year".

XMAS Past

The following poem was a Christmas greeting written in 1968 by Lynn Dupras to her parents, Ida and CWO. Doug Wilson (now retired), when Lynn spent her first Christmas away from home with her new husband, SGT. Danny Dupras on a posting in Soest, Germany. Lynn and Danny and their children are now stationed at CFS Beausejour.

THE VOICE OF A CHRISTMAS PAST

Once in an age so long ago, in a world so different from all we know,
A gentle young mother, so tender, loving
Bore a Babe wrapped round in glory bright,
And laid him in a cradle crude that chill dark night.
But transcending the mean poverty of this lowly place,
The Love of God, embodied in this infant form,
Lent heavenly radiance to the blessed Mother's face;
God's greatest gift, Man's Saviour, had at last been born!
I've no clear recollection of that long-ago moment
When the Story of Christmas was first to me told
But with every New Yuletide I reflect on its wonders
With a joy my heart knows will never grow old.
Here in my heart's memory I know beyond doubting,
That the voice that related this Story to me
Was filled with a love that surpasses all telling —
The love of a Parent, whose little girl was me.
The years swiftly flew, I left childhood behind,
But still found in the same arms a stronghold of shelter,
The voice, ever wise, lent advice should I falter
For you, my dear parents, never failed to be kind.
I now dream of a day, perhaps not far away,
When I'll lovingly hold my own child on my knee,
And gladly relate the same sweet Christmas Story
That years ago you once told to me.
The spirit, the Voice of that Christmas past,
Now awakes my dormant heart at last,
Invoking these words, so long overdue,
Dearest Mom, Dearest Dad, I truly —
"Thank you".

XMAS Tree Precautions

Christmas trees are extremely hazardous. The following preventive measures shall be carried out:

- a. Cut a growing tree or purchase one that shows it has not been allowed to dry out by prolonged storage (test flexibility of small branches and retention of needles). When too dry, small branches are brittle and shed needles easily.
- b. Stand the tree in water or snow outdoors until ready to use it indoors.
- c. Before setting up the tree, saw off the trunk at an angle at least one inch above the original cut.
- d. Support the tree well; stands are available with a receptacle for water and that are sturdy, of broad base and have clamps for anchoring the tree.
- e. Keep the tree away from heat (fireplaces; radiators and other sources).
- f. Place the freshly cut tree trunk in water and keep level of water above the cut the entire time the tree is indoors (check the water level at least once a day).
- g. Locate the tree so that, standing or falling, it could not block an exit in the event of fire.
- h. Lighting
 - i. Do not use wax candles on the tree or in the vicinity of the tree where there is any chance for an open flame to contact the tree or any combustibles located in the vicinity of the tree.
 - ii. Only electric lighting sets that bear the Underwriters Laboratories, Canadian Standards Association or Hydro Electric Commission Label of Approval shall be used.
 - iii. Each year, before using, check lighting sets for frayed wires, loose connections and broken sockets.
 - iv. Be sure the fuse of the electric circuit serving the tree is not over 15 amperes.
- j. General
 - i. Do not allow smoking near the tree, or amid decorations or wrappings.
 - ii. Plan what you must do if fire were to break out.
 - iii. Have operative water-based fire extinguishers, or a garden hose connected to a faucet, if available.

TEMPORARY DECORATIONS

- a. Untreated cotton batting, polyethylene foam, artificial flowers, paper and certain cloth costuming will ignite readily and burn with great intensity and, therefore, shall not be used unless suitably flameproofed. The use of non-combustible materials such as metal, glass, asbestos, should be encouraged.
- b. Decorations shall not be placed on electric fixtures or within three feet of electric lamps, heating appliances or heating piping.
- c. Decorations shall not be hung on door casings or on staircases, and shall be hung close to ceilings out of reach of personnel.
- d. Any extensive wiring for decorative purposes, other than Christmas tree lighting sets, shall be installed by a qualified electrician.

CAPT. R. H. Scott CD shown receiving his Certificate of Service from Mr. Hugh Filleul, Acting Commanding Officer of the Air Command Study Unit Winnipeg. CAPT. Scott retired from the Canadian Forces after serving twenty-five years as navigator, instructor and management analyst, to accept a position with the Public Service as an Organization and Methods officer in Winnipeg at the Air Command Management Study Unit. He was based at Trenton for the last eight years instructing at 426 Sqn, flying with 436 Sqn, ATCHQ and the Detachment Commander of the AIRCOM MSU Det. He will be employed at Trenton for several months on detached duty to complete a study commissioned by Air Transport Group Headquarters.

ROSMARIE KOHLBERG

You Don't Have to be French Canadian

Even though I have, naturally, not been inside every restaurant in Winnipeg, I would say with confidence that La Crêpe Bretonne is like no other restaurant in this city.

As we approached the narrow (former Royal Bank) building at 139 Albert Street, a stone throw from City Hall, no garish lights or neon letters, but a simple wooden sign, hung from chains over the entrance, assured us that we had arrived at La Crêpe Bretonne. Inside we were greeted by a friendly hostess who lead us to a table. That's standard enough. But for Winnipeggers who are so accustomed to having to grope their way through cave-like semi-darkness in their favorite eating places, it must come as a surprise to find a bright, well-lit, spacious place. (I have never understood, nor liked, that so-called "intimate" lighting in dining establishments - it must be a carry-over from prohibition days when people had to hide their illegal booze. Some still don't seem to feel comfortable in being seen drinking, I suppose, and hence the lack of decent lights.)

The decorators did an imaginative job. They left the basic structure intact - a long, narrow room flanked by Grecian columns under a high ceiling. By painting the columns a bright green and the walls a gleaming white, and by placing large mirrors along both walls, they created an effect of cheerful, bright spaciousness. Baskets of live ferns, suspended from the high ceiling enhance the green theme. Large opaque light fixtures high on the ceiling suggest skylights, augmented by wicker-shaded lamps over the tables.

The furniture is clean-lined and simple: natural-wood tables and chairs with wicker seats. Nothing ornate, nothing contrived. A patternless green rug covers the floor.

When he got settled at our table and studied the menu, we found out that there is no hard liquor. Fortified wines - sherry, vermouth, and the like - are served as apéritifs, and, of course, table wines, with the meal. But to get to the food. La Crêpe Bretonne specializes in crêpes (pancakes) the way they are made in the Bretagne, a large peninsula in north-western France. You don't have to be French Canadian to enjoy the food, but you do have to like crêpes or pancakes.

Before the main course, however, you may want some soup or appetizer. The menu lists, besides "Breton" soup onion soup and a few other specialties, a couple of quiches, escargot, stuffed shrimp, and two kinds of salad - all à la carte.

I had the "Breton" soup, a hearty, potato-based soup with green onions and sour cream - steaming hot and delicious. My dinner companion ordered onion soup, and it had lots of onion and a thick, puffed-up layer of stretchy cheese on top. The salad was not the skimpy little bowl of limp, cut-up lettuce with a few pieces of radish and celery that you often get in some of the standard eating places, but the tender Boston variety, combined with fresh, raw mushrooms, and served with one of the most delectable dressings I have ever tasted in any Winnipeg restaurant. I like a chef who has the skill and self-confidence to offer only his own dressing. Never mind a choice of Thousand Islands, Blue Cheese, or French dressings that come straight out of a Kraft bottle! Portions are ample - in fact, after the soup and the salad, I could almost have called it a day. But, of course, we had offered our crêpes, and they are the main dish.

These crêpes are made from either wheat or buckwheat, and their attraction is in the variety of fillings that they envelop. We had a choice of about thirty different combinations, ranging from eggs, sausage, ham, cheese, mushrooms, asparagus, etc to shrimps, scallops, and "Crabe Newburg", with prices ranging from $1.40 to $6.75. I had a combination of cheese, ham, and apple, which I thoroughly enjoyed. As I said, you have to like crêpes to do these dishes justice. Someone for whom a dinner is not a proper meal, unless it consists of meat, potatoes and vegetables, probably will never work up a great deal of enthusiasm over a crêpe. To someone like that it doesn't even appeal to the eye, sitting there on the plate all by itself. To me, on the other hand, this palatable crêpe dish, concealing its fragrant, savoury contents within its folds, meant a welcome change from the standard fare of standard restaurants.

For dessert, wheat crêpes come with sweet fillings: apple, honey, almond cream, fresh strawberries, and so on. These can be flamed with a variety of liqueurs, if desired. Assorted cheeses and other desserts are also available. The wine list features a good selection of champagnes, and red, white, and rosé wines, at the usual prices found in most restaurants. A house wine - both red and white - is also offered, at a substantially lower price than the other brands, and a couple of ciders complete the list.

The service in La Crêpe Bretonne must not be forgotten. The waitresses look charming in their Bretonne peasant outfits - long black dresses with large white aprons, and a white lace headpiece. They are all young, friendly, and move without haste among the tables. Somehow one doesn't mind that they are not all very skilled with a bottle opener. The atmosphere is quiet, friendly, and leisurely. No harassed staff races around between closely placed tables, no feeling of being rushed because your table is wanted for the next customer. At La Crêpe Bretonne you can sit and enjoy your meal in peace. My companion's last and final judgement on any restaurant is always the coffee: he pronounced it as excellent.
