On January 5th, 1984, the Military Police from CFB Winnipeg presented a cheque in the amount of $3600.00 to the St. Amant Centre in Winnipeg on behalf of the Military Police Fund for Blind Children.

During 1982, Military Police across Canada and in Europe were able to collect a total of $109,490.08 by sponsoring dances, bingos, telethons, and the list goes on. Don't forget here at Winnipeg, the Military Police and the Air Command Band will be sponsoring the Annual Big Band Ball on May 19th in Building 21.

As a point of interest, since the Blind Fund began in 1957, it has distributed $693,848.50 to schools and institutions across this country.

Like most WSO musicians, Linda Patterson makes a tremendous contribution to Winnipeg beyond her part in the orchestra. Here she teaches piano to an aspiring Manitoba musician.

The symphony is yours and mine.

What does it mean to Winnipeg to have a world class symphony? It means we have scores of fine musicians who teach children and adults. It means we have a Concert Hall for every kind of musical entertainment. It means we have a pool of musical talent for pit orchestras for the Royal Winnipeg Ballet, Manitoba Opera and Rainbow Stage. It means we have a musical culture which touches all of us in many ways.

In return, the symphony needs your support. WSO funding depends on sustaining fund contributions from corporations and individuals.

Help keep music alive in our city. Give generously to the annual sustaining fund of the WSO.

AEROSPACE WAREFARE SQUADRON REPORT

The last two tax deductions of 1983 are now in. Congratulations to Diane and Francois Carrignan and to Janet and Mike Campbell on the births of their daughters.

On the social side, the squadron has been busy. First, there was the Christmas Party at the Hollow Mug. A good time was had by all, with the top prize, the aforementioned Mike Campbell being won by the turkey and a bottle of wine. Next were a round of house parties or receptions which culminated at the ministry of truth on New Year's Day (the Squadron Leader's house). The next event is the pre-American tour gathering at the base bowling alley on the 28th.

The new coffee lounge has been opened by the Base Commander and an unofficial contest has been started to name it. The early favourite is "The Swordfish Room" and all entries should be submitted to the Commandant — just remember that he is a VP 415 (Swordfish) alumnus.

Our Trivia Officer, Bruno Schenk has found time out from his tour planning to discover the true meaning of Oberon. For those that think this is a class of submarine used by the Canadian navy — read on.

The 649 madness has now ended with someone winning the jackpot, but a record of sorts was set by a consortium of ASC course members. They set a 4732 per cent, per annum loss rate for their ticket return. Now sports fans, beat that.

Finally, Dennis Margueratt was recently seen "flying" his model F-14 around the hallways going "swoosh, swoosh" and then said "Become an Aerodynamics Instructor and you become a kid again".

P.S. Oberon is the king or the god of the fairies, depending on your mythology source.

VOXAIR VARIETY

by John Lauder

So you think that you have a tough job, eh, Bunky? You're going blind as a spotter on a search, freezing hands and feet working outside at minus 30 degree, or drowning in a sea of paper that covers your ears at CHQ? Better consider yourself as a lucky one, you could have taken up a career in acting, and be labouring on the stage downtown these days.

Chances are that you would be in one of the three plays now running at the Manitoba Theatre Centre. So you would be attempting to breath life into a silly comedy, shooting off revolvers in a play written in 1614, or telling all your troubles as a gay guy who could not make it in the straight world. Not that the plays are really bad, it is just that the actors have to work so darn hard to sell them.

The so-called sunshine comedy by one W. Shakespeare Much Ado About Nothing, is also supposed to be (the Director tells us) Much Ado About Noting. Thus people go about noting what others do, or do not do, and then react. But this is not one of Mr. Shakespeare's better plays, it is a farce he tossed off in his middle years to make a fast buck. The same group of actors who inhabit this play are also, on alternate evenings, performing in the horror show The Duchess of Malfi, so there are a lot of lines and acting bits they have to remember. By the way, if you are a real theatre groupie, and want to see both plays on the same day, you can do this most Saturdays — one at 4 p.h., the other at 9. p.h.

But to get back to the problems, Duchess is directed by or soon-to-be-lost to Toronto Richard Ouzounian, who has moved up the time of action from the 17th century to the 1930s. Thus people talking language 350 years old are wearing modern clothing, and the Renaissance Italians have become fascists under Mussolini. Instead of swords, they carry guns, which are used to great effect in a shoot-out at the end. This idea did work, but it was due to dogged hard work by the cast.

The local critics gave mixed reviews to both plays although in their own quaint ways they are worth seeing. Much Ado for fun is as good as most sitcoms on the small screen, and Duchess likewise for the melodrama seen in Godfather type movies on the big screen.

Yet another MTC play is on until January 28th at the Warehouse. This deals with a pair of gay guys, has a lot of talk, and very little action. The two participants, Allan Gray and John Moffat, work to defeat a script that is an endless discussion about mediocrity — to the point where it becomes mediocre itself. Yes, it is Canadian, but it is dull.

The Symphony is carrying on its busy program until the end of the month. On the 27th and 28th guest pianist Claudio Arrau will play Beethoven, while conductor Koizumi will lead the orchestra through two Ravel numbers. Then on the 29th the "Concert for Kids" will cover a number of classical forms and their origins, with David Amram as the conductor.

Terry Lawrence.

Although I understood the odds of winning 649 were approximately the same as my chance of being promoted, I bought tickets anyway. Hope springs eternal. The fact that I am still in the Voxair column business attests to my luck in lottery number selection.

From 649 Fever to Autopac Blues. It's that time of year. Dig deep among the balls of pocket lint because the prices are up again.

Hey! I'm not the Editor. The poem that appeared in the last Voxair, and which contained a couple of "naughty" words, was indeed written by me. It was written as a Section-to-section teasing relating to a golf tournament. It was never intended for newspaper publication.

"How come" so few know how to wear a "wedge" hat correctly?

It's an offense to these old and failing eyes to bear witness to some modes of wearing the old chapeau. Bad enough that female hairstyles account for most of the strange ways of wear, I actually saw a young chap, with a very narrow gold stripe on his epaulet, who was wearing a "wedge" almost sideways!

Capsule impressions of a few movies playing in the local cinemas.

Scarface; Crime doesn't pay is the final message but the central character (played by Al Pacino) has a lot of fancy living on the way. The familiar four letter word ending in K is used to the point of repetitive boredom.

Class; A double sex fantasy. One, a young college student gets lucky with an older, passionate and experienced woman. Two, a fortyish bored but monied married woman finds jack-rabbit gratification in a college boy.

Two Of A Kind. Olivia Newton John and John Travolta fans are the only ones who won't consider it a waste of money.

Never Say Never Again; Vintage 007 by the REAL James Bond. Sure, he has slowed down but the story and the action have taken Connery's age into consideration. I never did like what's-his-name anyway.

Turned on the late TV news the other night to catch mid-story an item showing a gaggle of military types in sweaters and berets. I thought I was on to a story about Aircorn HQ. Turned out to be a report on Lebanese rebels.

COMMANDANT CFANS KIDNAPPED

I've been had.

On Friday, 18 Nov 1983 the Commandant CFANS was kidnapped by six persons as he sat working in his office in Bldg 84. The following story relates the events which led up to the kidnapping and the events which unfolded after the kidnapping took place. Names have been disguised to protect the innocent (and to avoid lawsuits) and some liberties have been taken in recounting certain details, but it is stressed that this KIDNAPPING ACTUALLY TOOK PLACE. (1st of 4 parts).

Chapter 1

As dawn broke that fateful November morning, no one could imagine what lay ahead. Even as LCol Gourd awoke, the pieces of the puzzle that were to affect his life forever were inexorably being drawn together. He had been stationed in Winnipeg for over a year now. So far the career of the young (for a "senior" officer) navigator was unfolding as he had planned; as only an ASC graduate could plan. Although he had spent most of the previous year separated from his lovely wife Angel and their two children who had remained in Winterville, PEI, they were once again together. Slowly he sat up and then glanced over to his beautiful wife who was sleeping peacefully. "Gosh," he thought to himself. "Is it wonderful to be alive! In another hour I shall be at my desk, fulfilling my duties as Commandant CFANS." Yes, he had come a long way in those few short years following his graduation as an undergraduate student from this very institution that he now commanded. He was destined for glory and he knew it.

Carefully Lt Black Ball of 2 Battalion PPCLI checked over his five commandos. He knew their mission would be a dangerous one and all arrangements had to be perfect to allow even a 50% chance of success. "Second Lieutenant ensure that all the en have their camouflage paint in place by 0900 hours. We will roll at 1300 hours."

Ball thought back recalling the events of the previous week which spawned this daring but necessary mission. "Those carrion will pay for their audacity," he thought as he slipped the full magazine into his issue 9 mm Browning automatic. Just seven days ago a suicide squad had made their way over to the PPCLI Officers' Mess and had clan-destinely liberated several articles of memorabilia. The squad consisted of several Officers Cadets led by one Capt Pale Pelican.

Ball pulled the ejector to the rear where the mechanism picked up a shell and then slammed it home into the breach. Carefully he engaged the safety and holstered the weapon. "2Lt Poleaxe, have your men ready for briefing at 1000 hours in the CO's office."

Gently Gourd eased the key into the ignition switch of the late model Oldsmobile. The engine hesitated a moment, then roared to life. Although his PMQ was easily within walking distance from his office and normally he would walk, today he needed the car. He slipped the transmission into drive and slowly eased the behemoth into traffic. The vehicle was an anachronism; the energy crisis had seen to that. But he didn't mind. He could afford to pay a premium for the security and dependability that the car provided. Traffic was still light but had started to build. The car quickly accelerated to the speed limit and blended in with the rest of the traffic.

The Lieutenant looked mean and lean. The camouflage paint gave him the aura of a wild animal, cunning, fearless and filled with vengeance. He paced in front of his four commando companions; the pacing seemed to reinforce the animal images brought to mind. Impatiently Ball waited for the last member of his team to arrive. He was arranging transport for their soon to be commenced foray into danger. Finally, the five commandos and Lt Ball were ready to begin their elaborate plans.

The huge car lurched to a stop in front of Building 84 as Gourd slammed it into park. Looking around he saw the steel grey Honda parked where it had probably been for the last hour or so. The car belonged to his Adjutant Capt Keen Edge. Capt Edge's youthful carriage and cheerful demeanor belied the experience and savoir faire that he had garnered over the years. "Yes," thought Gourd, "like the Olds, dependable to a fault..." His thoughts trailed off as he entered the building, walked along the darkened but familiar corridor and up the stairway to his second floor office. As he ascended the stairs two at a time, a cryptic thought entered his mind. "With all the acts of terrorism and kidnappings occurring everywhere on almost a daily basis, security here at the Nav School could use some bolstering." His lungs hurt as he reached the last step and turned right past the Adjutant's office. As Gourd had thought, Capt Edge was busy at his desk. "Good morning, Capt. I see you're busy as usual." The quick response was, as usual to the point, and frighteningly clairvoyant. "Just getting together a security plan, sir," came the reply. Gourd had come to expect these insights over the last year but each time they happened the hair on the back of his neck bristled. "We are awfully vulnerable here at the Nav School. With the number of acts of terrorism and kidnappings happening everywhere, we can never be too careful."

"Amazing," muttered Gourd. "It's as if he can read minds!" "Will Judy be in this morning?" he queried. He was referring to his secretary, Mrs. Judy Jung. She had provided him with the continuity and expertise early in his assignment as Commandant when he needed it the most. She was a lithe, sensual creature who was able to calm the most agitated senior officer with a subtle look and almost imperceptible nuance. "She'll be in shortly, sir, right after she gets her teeth fixed." Again the response was quick and sharp. "Your appointments for today are outlined on your desk and I took the liberty of drafting your response to the General. You'll find your coffee on your desk, NATO standard."

"Bloody amazing," reflected Gourd. "Gentlemen, approximately seven hours from now, we will execute Operation Grab. The area has been thoroughly surveyed and all the potential problems carefully considered. We should encounter no difficulty getting to the building and intelligence would indicate that, given a lot of luck, and the will of God, we might be able to pull this off. Once inside the building we will have almost completed our assignment, but we will also be at our maximum vulnerability." The young Lieutenant had not been a member of the military long, but even he had heard of the legendary Captain, code named Cobra, Adjutant to the Commandant CFANS. "If only Capt Edge can be distracted we may pull this off." But, deep down he knew that chance must play a significant part in this caper for it to be successful. "Remember, if fate decrees that the Captain be there, then we must immediately abort the mission and surrender, for to resist would be futile. If we're lucky, we bag the Commandant, hustle him to the van then back to the South Site." There was no point in belabouring the issue. Either it would work, or it would fail. And they had done all they could to better their chances of success.

Is this part of the job?

4,000 des 45 000 exemplaires du nouveau GRAND DICTIONNAIRE ENCYCLOPEDIQUE LAROUSSE (dont la publication à commencer à s'étaler au début de 1983) ont été achetés par les Japonais; cela représente 10% du tirage total. Un reportage récent révélait que 92% des Japonais terminent l'école secondaire et, 30% terminent l'université.

Le coût d'opération d'une automobile augmente de 35% lorsqu'elle roule sur des routes en mauvais état plutôt que sur une surface de qualité, selon l'administration fédérale américaine des autoroutes. Autrement dit, nos voitures durent seulement les deux tiers du temps qu'elles devraient.

A quoi servent les inspecteurs de l'impôt? Le magazine Small Business rapporte que les 3200 inspecteurs fédéraux se sont livrés en 1981 à 58 700 vérifications qui ont rapportées 476 millions, soit $8 100 chacune ou $149 000 par inspecteur. Chacun d'entre coûte de $25 000 à $40 000 par an, plus son bureau ses déplacements et sa gestion (direction, matériel, papeterie).

L'American Medical Association a déterminé que la boxe n'est qu'au 8e rang des sports les plus dangereux. Les taux de mortalité sont les plus élevés chez les plongeurs (scuba diving) et les jockeys, les coureurs automobiles et les footballeurs des collèges.

Les enfants qui sont transportés à l'école en autobus n'ont pas, envers leur ville et leur collectivité, la même fidélité que ceux qui marchent à l'école affirme l'architecte Bernard Rudofsky. "Le piéton forme, sans s'en rendre compte, des liens profonds et qui durent toute la vie avec sa ville".

Vous pensiez que le mot "gadget" était un mot anglais? Quand le sculpteur alsacien Bartholdi offrit la statue de la Liberté aux Etats-Unis, le monument fut coulé par la firme parisienne Gaget, qui coula aussi les répliques miniatures qui se vendirent comme des petits pains et qu'on baptisa des "gagets". Prononcez à l'américaine...

Chaque printemps nos députés fédéraux passent environ 650 heures à étudier les prévisions budgétaires du Ministre des Finances. En 1983, environ $140 millions à l'heure ou $2.3 millions à la minute. Tout au fil de l'année, le gouvernement du Canada dépense, lui, $10 millions l'heure.

Les canadiens ont consacré plus d'argent aux drogues qu'à l'alcool pour la première fois en 1981. Selon un récent rapport de la RCMP, National Drug Intelligence Estimate, 3 millions de canadiens ont consommé $5 milliards de cannabis (du hash), un demi milliard de cocaïne, plus de $2 milliards d'héroïne et $275 millions d'autres produits divers. Les ventes de bière, de vin et d'alcool pour la même année n'ont atteint que $6 milliards! Ces chiffres sont évidemment distorsionnés par le fait que les drogues sont illégales: elles n'occuperaient pas un très grand entrepôt.

VOUS AIMEZ LE CALCUL?

Pour qui aime l'intrigue et le calcul, voici de quoi vous amuser. Il s'agit d'identifier les chiffres correspondant aux lettres P, R, Q et S dans la multiplication suivante:

-----
   Q S R
-----

Donc, P égal?
S égal?
R égal?
Q égal?
T égal?

Les réponses seront publiées dans le prochain VOXAIR.

LES RISQUES DU BILINGUISME

par J. LUSSIER capt

Pour un francophone, un risque majeur existe lors du processus d'apprentissage à la langue anglaise: l'assimilation ou "endocrination".

Toute personne possédant les deux langues officielles s'accordera à reconnaître qu'il/elle perd (a perdu) la qualité et contrôle de son vocabulaire, de la grammaire et du sens des mots français. Le plus souvent, l'anglais prend le dessus; ce qui se traduit par l'emploi d'anglicismes dans le parler et l'écrit et la difficulté à exprimer une pensée ou une idée dans le sens français. Cela amène une expression pauvre, faible, réduite.

Pourquoi? Je crois que c'est tout simplement dû au fait que dans son milieu de vie anglophone (social et travail) le francophone doit surtout utiliser la langue anglaise et se voit dans l'obligation de se familiariser avec la pensée et le parler anglais. Cela, en plus du fait que ce francophone veut (est très motivé) à apprendre la langue de Sheakespeare. C'est connu: le francophone est bilingue (son pourcentage est plus élevé que du côté anglais).

Les répercussions en demeurent plus graves que l'on ne veut y croire ou le voir. Tout en ayant l'illusion que le francophone conserve sa langue première, il l'a perdue "à p'tit feu" jusqu'au moment où il se rend compte que:

- ses enfants ne parlent que l'anglais
- il marmotte quelques mots français avec une prononciation imprécise et sans être trop certain de sa signification;
- il a oublié que le mot "défense" prend un "s" en français; (ceci n'est qu'un exemple);
- il ne sait plus le mot français pour identifier telle chose;
- le texte français qu'il écrit a un ton plutôt anglais;
- il est devenu plus anglophone que francophone.

Et tout cela peu aller jusqu'au point où je connais des francophones assimilés (ceux-là sont membres des FC) qui désireraient recevoir le cours de français offert par le Service.

Quoi faire devant de tels faits? Que reste-t-il au francophone assimilé au milieu anglophone, pour "récupérer la qualité et le contrôle de sa langue première?"

Je lui suggérerais d'abord de ne pas (voir jamais) hésiter à converser ou à jaser en français lorsqu'il est en présence d'au moins un francophone; il peut se trouver une personne de langue française dans un groupe où la majorité parle l'anglais.

Je lui suggérerais aussi de lire. Il est facile de recevoir des journaux français que ce soit du Québec ou d'ailleurs (La Liberté au Manitoba).

Je lui suggérerais de parler le français lorsqu'il s'adresse à un anglophone qui est à suivre un cours de français; il ne fera que lui rendre un immense service.

Je lui suggérerais de s'impliquer dans des organismes ou groupes sociaux de langues française; il en existe dans plusieurs provinces canadiennes.

Et vous, que suggérez-vous?

Quelle est votre opinion sur les risques pour un francophone à en oublier sa langue?

LA PREMIERE FEMME: COMMANDANT EN CHEF DES FORCES CANADIENNES

Qui aurait seulement un jour effleuré l'idée que nos Forces armées canadiennes auraient comme grande chef "un personnage du sexe féminin"? Je croyais que l'homme irait bien des fois sur Mars avant que l'on voit une femme occupée un poste si prestigieux. Pessimisme? Peut-être; plutôt réaliste d'habitude...

Toujours est-il qu'actuellement, dans nos rangs militaires nous n'avons pas de femme aux rangs de généraux. Il faudra peut-être attendre une autre génération avant d'assister à la promotion d'un de nos brillants officiers féminins dans ce "men's world". Qu'en pensez-vous mesdames, messieurs..?

Mme Jeanne Benoit-Sauvé fut la première Québécoise appelée au Cabinet fédéral en 1972, première présidente de la Chambre des Communes en 1980 et, première femme Chef d'Etat du Canada.

Certes, des chauvinistes diront "OK! mais elle ne gouverne pas; elle ne fait que régner". Que fait-on des symboles, de l'image canadienne qu'elle offre et représente dans nos valeurs canadiennes?

Une chose certaine: tous, tous les canadiens savent que est notre Gouverneur général actuel et connaissent son nom. Il est reconnu qu'une grande portion des canadiens aurait du mal à se rappeler qui fut le prédécesseur de l'Honorable Ed Schreyer. Cette fois, tout le pays, jeunes et moins jeunes, s'arrêtent sur notre nouveau Chef d'Etat car ce chef est, par un heureux hasard, de la gent féminine. Et son nom restera imprimé dans les mémoires pour des dizaines d'années à venir. On l'observera donc très attentivement et, avec curiosité, dans sa mission consistant à rechercher l'harmonie et à susciter des consensus qui se fondent sur des valeurs fondamentales et permanentes des démocraties libérales.

Un mot pour la fin de cette réflexion: l'appellera-t-on Madame la Gouvernante, Madame la Gouverneuse ou Madame le Gouverneur? Nos experts de la langue française auront à y travailler...

SOUTHSIDE COMMUNITY COUNCIL RECRUITING CAMPAIGN 1984

The South side Community Council is looking for new councillors to increase the representation of the MQ residents in the 6 wards. An ideal representation would be 3 Councillors per ward in addition to the top 4 positions of the Executive Committee, for a total of 22 members. Presently the Council has 13 members, wards 5 and 6 have only 1 member each on the Committee, and one of them also acts as Vice-President. A larger representation would allow a more flexible delegation of responsibilities, therefore reducing the workload of each member.

Since the occupants of the South side MQ's are employed in various positions at CFB Winnipeg, Aircom, 2 Bn PPCLI and RSS, a proportional representation of each group would be ideal. Anyone interested in volunteering a little of his time for the benefit of the Community is encouraged to contact one of the present Councillors, a list and photograph of those having been published in a Nov 83 edition of the Voxair. A visit to a Council meeting could enlighten interested personnel on the various activities involved. The next meeting is scheduled for Feb. 14 at 1330 hrs in the annex of the RC Chapel (South).

If a sufficient number of Councillors was recruited, then the Council could arrange to re-organize its Committee on a bi-annual basis to allow for an even change-over that would not be restricted to the posting season. Each appointment are normally for a 1 year period, with possibility of extension on request. In the present organization, many positions will become vacant next summer, including the Chairman position. If it can be any encouragement, the BComd, through BSO's, will excuse all Community Council members from any Base duties.

So we would like to welcome new members, with or without previous experience, with new ideas and willing to enhance the life in our military Community.
