Herc tankers operational

by Lt(N) Dave Scanlon

After two years of research and modifications, Canada's new tactical refuelling and airlift aircraft, five CC-130T Hercules, are operational. After being brought into service late in the Gulf War for tactical airlift, the Hercs were sent back to be refitted with an air-to-air refuelling system, marking the first time in recent history a standard Hercules has been converted into a tanker after purchase.

In 1986, the Canadian Forces had identified a need for a tactical refueller and were looking at buying several Hercules tankers, known as KC-130s, from Lockheed Aeronautical Systems Company in the United States. However, by the summer of 1990, with the Gulf War and a host of UN peacekeeping operations looming on the horizon, the CF was faced with an urgent need to boost its tactical airlift capability.

The solution was to kill two birds with one stone: Lockheed was able to meet the CF's immediate need for five

C-130 Hercules aircraft to handle tactical airlifts (three were delivered in time to see service in the Gulf War); and, in response to a proposal from the CF, Lockheed agreed to refit the five Hercs within two years with air-to-air refuelling systems.

Using the Hercules' existing "plumbing," Lockheed's Edmonton based sub-contractor, North West Industries (NWI), installed a removable refuelling pod under each wing — each pod contains a

Last hurrah of the "wolf pack"

by Robert Fisher,

September 1993 marks the 50th anniversary of the last major German convoy battle in the North Atlantic. For much of the Second World War, groups of German U-boats, known as "wolf packs," were an unstoppable threat to Allied shipping, especially along the great circle route between Europe and North America. But Allied code-breaking and advances in radar, along with its growing numbers of escort ships and aircraft, finally turned the tide. In May 1943, the Allies destroyed 41 U-boats, forcing Germany to withdraw its wolf packs from the North Atlantic. Yet the German Navy's commander-in-chief, Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz, viewed the Allied successes as a temporary setback, soon to be avenged by technical advances and improved weapons on Germany's part. In September 1943, the U-boats returned to the convoy lanes of the North Atlantic equipped with the "Zaunkoenig" acoustic torpedo, which homed in on the sound of a propeller, to spearhead an autumn offensive against Allied shipping. Early that month, Doenitz positioned a patrol line of 20 U-boats astride the great-circle route between Europe and North America. It did not have long to wait. In mid-September, two convoys, designated ONS-18 and ON-202, left Great Britain along routes leading into the jaws of the pack. Although an RCAF Liberator bomber en route from Iceland to Gander spotted and destroyed a member of the waiting pack, U-341, Allied intelligence was unable to warn the convoys in time of the danger ahead. A member of the patrol, U-270, sighted silhouettes of merchant vessels in the early hours of Sept. 20 and closed to attack. It fired one of the new "Zaunkoenig" torpedoes — designed especially to destroy warships — striking and disabling the frigate HMS Lagan. The destroyer HMCS Gatineau quickly pounced with an accurate depth-charge attack, but U-270 escaped. As dawn approached, U-238 infiltrated the convoy's protective "screen" of warships, sank two merchant ships with standard

Every Drop Counts! Be A Red Cross Blood Donor

Every six seconds, a Canadian citizen requires a blood transfusion. Think about it. In the time it takes you to read this how many Canadians will receive a blood donation from the Red Cross? But, of course, that Canadian who requires blood every six seconds is only a statistic, right? He could never be you or someone in your family, right? Well, think about it. If you don't agree, or if you think that maybe it could be you who receives a blood transfusion, then do something about it. Be a Red Cross Blood Donor at the forthcoming Base Clinic. It will be held Wednesday, November 10, 1993 from 0900 hours to 1130 hours and 1300 hours to 1600 hours at the Drill Hall (Bldg 21) 17 Wing Winnipeg

THE OLD AND THE NEW

A rare sight in 1993: a CF-18 posing with a CF-104 in 439 colours and a F-86 Sabre. The F-86 will be mounted on pedestal in the Air Force Heritage Park and the CF-104 is being donated to the Western Canada Aviation Museum. But what about the F-18? I am told that overzealous technicians were already measuring the aircraft and that CE is working on the design of its own pedestal!

THE WINNIPEG BLUE BOMBERS VISIT THE OFFICERS' MESS

On 3 Sep 93, the Winnipeg Blue Bombers were invited to TGIF at the Offrs' Mess. Mr Cal Murphy, on behalf of the Big Blue, presented LCOL Mike Dolan, A/W Comd, with the Blue Bombers Air Patrol Poster. The poster depicts the Bombers Defensive line posing in front of the AFHP CF-5 located on Ness Avenue.

retractable hose connected to the aircraft's fuel system. The pods are made in Britain by Flight Refuelling Limited (FRL) and are the same as those used on the Royal Australian Air Force's Boeing 707 tankers.

The cargo space of each aircraft was modified to receive a removable 15,000 litre fuel tank with in-built high-speed pumps, all of which connects to the aircraft's fuel system. In addition, to help other aircraft find the tankers, the CF installed an air-to-air tactical navigation (TACAN) system — in effect a beacon for aircraft with TACAN receivers.

The tanker has two configurations: pods and fuel tank, for refuelling missions; and no pods or fuel tank (or, to save time, pods only), for tactical airlift, search and rescue, or other uses. Air Command will likely keep two of the tankers configured full-time for refuelling and the remaining three configured as needed.

After a few wrinkles were ironed out, the CF conditionally accepted the first modified Hercules in June 1992. Lockheed trained the first crews last year at CFB Cold Lake, Alta., and CFB Bagotville, Que. The CF took over training in late 1992 and the first official CC-130T air-to-air course was completed in January.

All five tankers were accepted into service by June and are now based at 18 Wing (Edmonton), where they are operated by both 435 Squadron, which conducts air-to-air refuelling and tactical airlift, and 418 Reserve Squadron, for search and rescue.

The new tankers could conceivably play an additional role for the CF as strategic, or long-range air-to-air refuellers. With the CF's fleet of CC-137 Boeing 707s close to retirement (likely by 1996), there is a need for a new strategic tanker.

Although the CC-130Ts could not be used as true strategic tankers due to their limited range, flying speed, and fuel capacity, they could act as prepositioned refuelling stations. The other option under consideration is to install refuelling systems in the CF's five new strategic aircraft, the CC-150 Polaris (known commercially as the A-310 Airbus).

In any event, the Hercules, in all its configurations, continues to be the "work horse" aircraft of Canada's Armed Forces.

torpedoes, and slipped safely away. Shore authorities immediately ordered the two convoys to merge into a single convoy of 65 merchant ships and an escort of 12 warships, including HMCS Gatineau, and HMC corvettes Drumheller and Kamloops. A nearby support group, designated EG-9, which included HMC ships St. Croix, Chambly, Sackville, Morden, and HMS Itchen, was ordered to reinforce the escort. The large screen held the pack at bay during the daylight hours of the 20th, but that night, in a battle well astern of the convoy, U-305 sank HMCS St. Croix and U-952 sank HMS Polyantus. HMS Itchen collected the 82 survivors. Meanwhile, HMCS Drumheller and an RAF Liberator attacked U-338, which was never heard from again. Next day, HMS Keppel rammed and sank U-229 and, despite a heavy fog, the escort kept the remainder of the pack well away from the convoy.

The fog lifted next afternoon, allowing RCAF Liberators from 10 Squadron to join the battle from their base 800 miles west in Newfoundland. One of these, L-10, attacked U-270 on the surface, but had one engine shot out by flak and returned to base. Another Liberator, X-10, wounded U-377's captain with machine-gun fire.

Both U-boats withdrew from the battle, but 10 others remained in pursuit through the night. The escort warded off several feints by the pack before U-666 torpedoed and sank HMS Itchen — the ship that two days earlier had rescued the 82 survivors from St. Croix and Polyantus. This time there were only three survivors: one from each of the three ships.

Although four escort ships were torpedoed, the pack hadn't menaced the merchant ships within the screen since the first night. Then, during the late hours of Sept. 23, U-238 penetrated the screen for the second time and sank three merchant ships. Later, U-952 slipped inside the screen and sank a fourth. Before daylight broke, both U-boats were safely away.

Daylight marked the end of the four-day battle as the warships and supporting Liberators managed to frustrate the remaining stalkers, leading Doenitz to call off the hunt. The U-boats had sunk three frigates and damaged another, HMS Lagan, beyond repair. In turn, the escort and the Liberators had sunk three U-boats and damaged several others.

The submarine commanders, however, claimed to have sunk 12 escort vessels and seven merchant ships, leading Doenitz to conclude his wolf packs were still an effective weapon in the North Atlantic. But in truth, the day of the wolf packs was past. They had lost the element of surprise and the Allies now had the numbers, skills, and technology to keep them at bay.

Even the acoustic torpedo had been anticipated by the Allies and a towed noise-making decoy was soon in use. Allied air power, support groups of warships, and code-breaking continued to thwart groups of warships, and code-breaking continued to thwart the wolf packs. By November 1943, the offensive upon which Doenitz and the German Navy had pinned their hopes had collapsed.

Special Waste-Go Green Disposal

HAZARDOUS WASTES

The handling and disposal of hazardous materials are covered by provincial and federal regulations, and are generally supervised by occupational health and safety personnel and facilities managers. If you are involved in handling hazardous materials, you should have received training in proper procedures through the Workplace Hazardous Materials Information System (WHMIS). If you have any questions about how hazardous materials and wastes are handled in your office, contact your health and safety officer.

OFFICE PRODUCTS

Although a surprising number of the products we use every day in the office are not considered hazardous under existing legislation, they still contain chemicals that can be harmful to the environment if not handled and disposed of with care. For example, many pens, markers, correction fluids and office equipment cleaning products contain minute quantities of toxic substances. Although the amounts involved are small, the cumulative effect of these substances on the environment can be significant.

In the long term, the best approach in dealing with hazardous and environmentally harmful materials is to reduce their use as much as possible. As an individual, there are a number of things you can do:

- Be aware of the types of products you use. Through WHMIS, product suppliers are obliged to provide Material Safety Data sheets listing any harmful ingredients in a product to be used in a workplace. If concerned about a product, check whether less toxic alternatives are available.

- Wherever possible, use water-based correction fluids, pens and markers and less toxic inks, adhesives and cleaning products.

- Follow proper procedures for the collection of wastes and spent containers from products containing environmentally harmful materials. A health and safety officer can advise you on how to dispose of something.

Dry-Cell batteries contain minute quantities of heavy metals such as lithium and mercury. In a conventional landfill site, these heavy metals can leach out and contaminate groundwater, so batteries should be disposed of in secure hazardous waste facilities.

DRUG AWARENESS WEEK

NOVEMBER 14 - 20

Drug Awareness Week (DAW) and National Addictions Awareness Week are both celebrated in the same month each year. Both "Weeks" are working for the same goal "increased knowledge and sensitivity to factors associated with the prevention and treatment of chemical abuse".

DAW started as a Canada wide initiative of Health and Welfare, Canada. Most of the Provincial Addiction Service agencies also participate. Although there is cooperation amongst them, each one is responsible and independent in their initiatives.

In Manitoba, the Alcoholism Foundation of Manitoba encourages and supports local communities in the consideration and delivery of various activities during DAW. Since 1985, there has evolved a core of concerned and interested groups wishing to take part in this worthwhile effort.

The Winnipeg Coordinating Committee for Drug Awareness Week is now reaching out to parent groups, asking them to become involved in promoting Drug Awareness Week among their members. Because parents have such a great influence on the development of healthy attitudes towards substance use, their input into Drug Awareness activities is vital.

Any parent groups that are interested in becoming involved in Drug Awareness Week activities are encouraged to contact Pat Saunders of the Alcoholism Foundation of Manitoba. Her phone number is 944-6371.

ARC: People From All Walks Of Life

- "black mark" on career a myth

by Rhonda Roy reprinted from The Lookout
(This is the second of a six-part series on alcoholism in the military.)

You need a cigarette to relax your nerves, a coffee to get you going in the morning, a pill for your headache, a weight-loss program to lose 5 kg in 10 days without even trying. There is a product on the market for your every need. Satisfaction and happiness, beauty and self-esteem can be bought — just fill out this coupon, buy this book, attend this seminar. We lead artificial lives, convinced by the media that we are not meant to suffer or feel pain. But many of us do feel and suffer, masking emotions and pain in a haze of alcohol or drugs. According to the staff at the CF's west coast Addiction Rehabilitation Clinic (ARC), the disease of alcoholism is a disease of perception — what is normal anyway?

Capt Ray Mostowy, clinical chief of ARC, and his staff stress the important role Canadian Forces supervisors play in the successful treatment of addicted service members. Often supervisors don't react until the addiction has become very evident, thinking the service member is too young and has everything going for him, or that receiving treatment at ARC could be a negative experience and a black mark on the member's record.

A few supervisors have waited until the chargesheet is pages long before recommending a member for treatment. But consequences are always devastating if the addicted person remains untreated for too long. Success rates among patients improve dramatically when they enter the clinic with something left to lose — whether it be their family or their job. Success rates accelerate when patients have something in their life other than a pile of debts waiting at home for them to return to.

Bob was a high-ranking supervisor when he went into ARC. The younger patients were at first intimidated by his rank; but he now counts some of them among his good friends. Going into ARC was a "shocking" experience for Bob as he didn't believe he needed treatment. He was a binge drinker, going at it for four or five days until his money or his body gave out or an important meeting was pending. He now describes ARC treatment as "the most saving grace of my whole life."

During Bob's binge drinking, he lost touch with all the basics of life, his morals and his dreams. "The whole world opened up after treatment," he claims. His sons like him now, his wife is his friend, he does community work with young people, and he describes a personal transformation from that of an angry and hurt person, into an easy-going man of temperate character. "Everything's just roses," he says.

Bob doesn't know anyone who has not advanced in their career after ARC treatment. He describes the support of senior officers at his base as "outstanding" at every level: "Years ago, if something happened in the [military] family you tried to hide it," he says. "That's not so now, it's out in the open. ARC has been good for the military community ... a lot of well trained personnel would have been lost without treatment."

The black mark of ARC upon one's career is a myth. Career manager Lt(N) Dave O'Brien says that "from a career manager's point of view, there is nothing at all indicated on a member's record," in regards to ARC participation. When faced with 700 to 800 members' files, addiction treatment is simply not taken into consideration when making decisions regarding a member's career. He and other career managers are "not the least bit concerned."

SUPPORT PERSONNEL MEMORIAL UNVEILING CEREMONY

By Capt J.L.D. Lachance, WPAO

Phase I of the Air Force Heritage Park concluded on 14 October 1992 when the CF 101 Voodoo, the CF 104 Starfighter and the CT-134 Musketeer were unveiled.

On 29 April 1993, the first part of phase II of the Park was also unveiled. This chapter included three new aircraft, each with their own significance in the Canadian Air Force history: the CH-136 Kiowa, the Grumman CP-121 Tracker Maritime Surveillance aircraft and the CX-144 Canadair Challenger prototype aircraft.

For the second part of phase II, the CF-5, erected along Ness Avenue, was unveiled on 29 July 1993. The tail mounted aircraft is perhaps the most striking aircraft in the Air Force Heritage Park to date and has certainly proven to be an eye catcher to the many passers-by.

The last part of phase II was scheduled for 17 September 1993, but inclement weather forced the construction schedule to fall behind. Therefore, it was decided that the next three aircraft: the Sabre, the Canuk and the T-33, would be unveiled on 28 October 1993.

The Support Personnel Memorial was, nevertheless, unveiled on that date in conjunction with the 1993 RCAFA Reunion in Winnipeg. The Acting Wing Commander, LCol Lee Smith invited LGen Scott Clements, Commander of Air Command to do the honours during a ceremony held in Hangar 16.

The sculpture, sponsored by the 500 "City of Winnipeg" RCAF Wing, depicts an eagle, fleeing from two open hands and is the fine work of Winnipeg artist, Mr Dave Laliberte. The memorial represents the contribution of all support trade personnel to the Air Force.

Eventually, this statue will proudly be displayed in the Air Force Heritage Park amongst the aircraft already on display.

The sculptor, Mr Dave Laliberte, and his wife.

CFANS Update

"The Bitters" of 9306, attempting to assume the CFANS social mantle vacated by 9207's departed "Governors of Grosvenor", recently threw a house warming party. To help ensure the event's success the boys relentlessly promoted the party day and night inviting even the most casual acquaintance. Yet despite all of their efforts, even at the party's peak there were still plenty of extra chairs to go around. When asked to compare this very quiet "get together" with previous Nav school extravaganzas a buoyant Ocdt Kyle Rosenlund remarked "This was a difficult one to call normally I try to be fashionable and arrive once the party is hopping. However, if I'd tried that approach with a party that really bites like this one, I'd still be home."

Rumours have been circulating throughout the school regarding Capt Brian Crosier's abrupt move out of the section and into the Transport office. Inquisitive staff members have speculated that the move was instituted by management in an effort to reduce friction between Brian and his co-workers. "In a way that's true," said Crosier, "The six of us were jammed in there so tight that there literally was friction." When asked about losing a man of Crosier's stature, Acting Section Commander Capt Brad Coates remarked, "Brian is irreplaceable! We hope." Echoed new arrival Capt Remi Landry "It's not that I don't like Brian, it's just that I'm glad that I won't have to sit on his knee at section meetings anymore."

In this week's episode of The Education of a Young Officer, Jason discusses some invaluable lessons he has recently learned about operating in and around uncontrolled airports. "Wow! Said an astounded Lt Neale, "I saw some stuff the other day with Capt Aubin that they just don't cover in Training Systems." "In the Jaw when you brief an approach to runway 14 you don't expect to land on the end with the big 32 painted on it. Geez what a surprise!"

In late breaking Intersection sports news, the CFANS curling team trounced the Wing Commander's squad in their season opener. Said jubilant Nav school skip Capt Dave (Coop) Cooper, "I don't want to say that it was a rout but we ran out of numbers before the game was over." Well Coop maybe that next posting will be coming a little quicker than you'd thought. Congratulations to graduating members of course 9268 on a job well done and best of luck on your respective OTU's. Speaking of congratulations or maybe in this case it should be condolences, Capt Anil Mohan has been selected to fill in as the Wing Commander's Executive Assistant during an upcoming period. Said Mohan when queried about the assignment "Don't get me wrong. I always thought that being the best dressed instructor at CFANS would have it's rewards. It's just that I was hoping that those rewards would be a little more enjoyable."

Care at Home: It Works & Costs Less!

Nurses in acute home care programs are providing high quality patient care in the home setting. The goal is to give care that focuses on the patient's needs, while saving money.

Not so long ago, patients remained in hospital until they no longer needed nursing care. Hospital stays were longer and more expensive than necessary. Some acute nursing care still takes place in hospital when it could safely and effectively occur at home. But innovative programs across Canada are showing how these services can be delivered in the home, at lower cost and with greater patient satisfaction.

Nurses are pivotal in managing and delivering these home care programs. In hospital they assess and prepare the patient. At home they manage and provide the care, while monitoring the patient's progress.

People Prefer Care at Home

People prefer care at home because it allows more independence in familiar surroundings. Response to care and treatment is as good as or better than in hospital. Giving this care at home also makes acute care beds available for those who require the extensive or complex care provided only in hospital. So waiting lists shrink, and the hospital's scarce resources are used more appropriately. The programs not only allow early discharge from hospital, but they can be alternatives to periodic hospitalization for chronic or recurring conditions.

Intravenous Therapy at Home

One good example of nursing care at home is intravenous (IV) therapy. Cancer chemotherapy and the administration of antibiotics or drugs for pain control are some of the IV therapies being delivered at home.

Thousands of people all across Canada routinely receive IV therapy in hospital. Not all could appropriately receive this care at home. But there is potential to realize savings, while enhancing the satisfaction and quality of life of the people receiving the care.

Studies of different kinds of IV therapy at home report savings of between 40% and 85% compared to hospital care. And they all confirm that patients prefer being treated at home.

People with cancer who receive IV chemotherapy at home think one of the main benefits is the increased sense of control they get from overseeing their own care, at a time when they tend to feel overpowered by their illness.

Surgery Patients Back on Their Feet Early

Another example of acute home care is early discharge from hospital following surgery. Patients benefit from leaving hospital and resuming a more normal life as soon as possible after surgery. In these programs, nursing care traditionally provided in the last few days of the hospital stay takes place in the patient's home. Nurses identify suitable patients, manage the transition from hospital to home, provide patient education at home and monitor progress.

These programs illustrate nursing's contribution to ensuring that people receive the right service in the right setting at a cost our health care system can afford.

Honorary Colonel Appointed

COLD LAKE, AB—

The Commander of Air Command, Lieutenant General G. S. Clements, has announced the appointment of Major General (retired) David P. Wightman CMM CD, as Honorary Colonel of 441 Tactical Fighter Squadron. The Air Force is very fortunate to be able to benefit in this way from his distinguished military career. The selection of a distinguished civilian to this prestigious position provides a focus for unit pride and will serve to strengthen ties with other components of Canadian society.

Major General Wightman has enjoyed a long and distinguished career in the aviation environment. He served in various operational and staff capacities with the Canadian Forces for over thirty years. These included: Deputy Commander, 1 Canadian Air Group, Germany; Commanding Officer, Aerospace Engineering Test Establishment, Cold Lake, Alberta; and Chief of the Military Factors Division, NATO Airborne Early Warning Program at Brunssum, The Netherlands. He spent two years with the Privy Council office as Deputy to the Secretary of the Cabinet Committee on Foreign and Defence Policy, after which he became Commander of Canadian Forces Europe in Lahr, Germany.

Following his retirement from the Canadian Forces, Mr. Wightman joined the National Transportation Agency in 1987 to advise the Chairman on the reorganization of the Canadian Transport Commission into the new Agency. He subsequently assumed the role of Director General, Transportation Subsidies. In 1988, Mr. Wightman became the Senior Vice-President of European Helicopter Industries (Canada) Inc. during the definition phase of the EH 101 shipborne helicopter project. On July 4, 1989, Mr. Wightman assumed the position of Assistant Deputy Minister, Aviation, at Transport Canada. He is responsible for the operation and regulation of the civil aviation system in Canada.

MANITOBA / LAKEHEAD

DONATIONS TO CHILDRENS HOSPITAL OVER $100,000

When this project was initiated in 1987 the Manitoba Militia District raised over $12,000 for the Childrens hospital.

Manitoba Lakehead District members have reached a milestone this year with the 1993 pledges pushing their seven year pledges to $105,000. A $13,250 cheque was presented by Colonel James Jeffries, Commander of the district, onstage during the CBC "Make A Miracle" telethon at the Highlander Curling Club. This cheque represents a long term commitment to the Childrens Hospital Research Foundation and helped reach a milestone for the District.

In 1987 the District, then known as the Manitoba Militia District, initiated an ambitious project by pledging to the Hospital all donations they could raise with a run from Thunder Bay to Winnipeg. This 770 kilometer run took 30 volunteers four days to complete the trip. Over $12,000 was raised.

Now the run has evolved into one of the largest fund-raising tools for the hospital and promotes an awareness to the rural community. Over 65 townships in southern Manitoba have been involved with the runners.

Although Manitoba Lakehead District supports the run there are other units and commands which assist. Intelligence Unit, from Land Forces Western Area (LFWA), lodged in Winnipeg, have been a great part of the team. Communications (735 Comm Squad) have supplied a team of runners for the past few years. The regular forces have come through, as well, with runners from the 2PPCLI and 3RCR.

Another sponsor for the past few years has been Manitoba Pool Elevators. Including their corporate pledge to the hospital, they have supplemented costs by supplying uniforms to the running team. For the second year in a row their Dauphin area had been the larger contributing elevator area for the pledges.

There are many other events that the district puts on during the year to raise money for the pledges. Flea markets are held in winter at Minto Armories. Known as the "Gigantic" flea market it has raised thousands of dollars and financially helps prepare for the spring run.

In the spring of 1994 the runners will be going into the communities to meet with the children of the townships. They will put the "Children" into the Childrens Hospital Research Foundation.

Colonel James Jeffries, Commander of the district, made the presentation of a cheque for $13,250 for the Childrens Hospital Research Foundation at the CBC "Make A Miracle" telethon.

CD Presentations

Sgt Keith Zaronek, from the Intelligence Section, LFWA, received his CD on the 15th of September. Keith, a reservist, is a new constable with the Winnipeg Police and undergoing recruit training at the Winnipeg Police Academy.

HEAD DISTRICT

MANITOBA LAKEHEAD MEMBERS PISTOL HOT!

Last June six members of the District were in Calgary to compete in the first ever Land Forces Western Area (LFWA) small arms competition. These shooters won the 9 mm combat pistol match which qualified them to compete in Ottawa at Connaught Ranges.

Competitors came from all western provinces, except Saskatchewan, which also included one team representing ICMBG (regular force members).

Successful for the District were Warrant Officer Dan Haslip (team captain), Cpl. Albert Skiba, both from Intelligence Sec, Lt. R.M. Chapman, M/Cpl Doug Woodman, both of the Queens Own Cameron Highlanders, Warrant Officer Clint McKechnie, formerly of the 17th Svc Bn, and Pte. V.T. Laudy of the Royal Winnipeg Rifles.

Competition got tougher in Ottawa and although they shot well they came a little short for the Canadian Championships.

The pistol team is open to any members of the Manitoba Lakehead District. The club shoots at Minto Armoury Tuesday nights and their season is expected to be starting up in November. Anyone interested can contact W.O. Dan Haslip at local 5984.

Sgt Lynn Paquette, a finance clerk, was presented her CD on the 15th of September by the Commander of Manitoba/Lakehead District, Colonel James Jeffries. Lynn has left the District and followed her heart to Montreal. Everyone from Headquarters wishes Lynn the best.

HAVE A SAFE HALLOWEEN MESSAGE TO PARENTS AND TEACHERS

Although Halloween is a fun time for young people, many cruel tricks have been played on them. For this reason, the Military Police and your Local Safety Council/Association, asks parents and teachers to teach children safety habits at Halloween time.

We have listed a few important rules that should be followed:

- If you're wearing a costume, make sure it's light coloured and flame resistant. Tell your parents to use retro-reflective tape so car drivers can see you better.
- Make-up is better and safer than a mask. A mask with small holes makes it very hard

- Wear a short costume so you do not trip. Bikes and costumes do not mix.
- Be safe, carry a flashlight so you can see and be seen.
- When Tricking and Treating, do one side of a street at a time.
- Go out with a parent or older brother/sister.
- If you are old enough to be on your own, ensure that your parents know when you will be home.
- Go to houses where there are lights on. Do not go into houses or apartments. If you have a bad feeling about a certain house, then do not go near it.
- Have a good meal prior to going out. Save your goodies for later. Ensure that an adult checks your candy prior to you eating it.

- Remember, Block Parents are Safe Strangers, please watch for their signs.
- If the weather is stormy or very bad, we suggest that you either stay home, or have a small house party with nearby friends.

A Note to parents and all drivers.

Please use extra care, as many little children who are not normally out after dark, are, on this evening travelling up and down our dark streets trying to receive that Halloween treat.

PUBLIC POLICING TO BE HIT BY BUDGET CUTS

In 1992, the Solicitor General of Canada released a discussion paper entitled A Vision of the Future of Policing in Canada:

Police Challenge 2000.

The paper documents the shrinkage of some major municipal police forces and predicts no overall growth in public policing over the next ten years due to budgetary constraints.

Because of the changing environment of policing by the year 2000, the conclusion is reached that "private industry and other less expensive alternatives to public policing will be in greater demand." Private policing services and volunteer community programs will play a very important role.

Increasingly, police forces will require the involvement of volunteers to act as their eyes and ears, and will provide back-up when "real" crime or emergencies occur.

Mobile Watch, a program headquartered at the Canada Safety Council, is well positioned to take up this challenge.

Anyone equipped with a cellular telephone can call 9-1-1 or their local star (*) or applicable emergency number if they witness a life-threatening situation, crime in progress or suspicious activity such as:

- assault or robbery
- gun shot or person with a weapon
- person signalling urgent need of help
- medical emergency, serious injury
- motor vehicle crash
- fire or explosion
- dangerous driving behaviour
- major road obstruction

The presentation of Wings was held at the Mess of the 3 Canadian Forces Flying Training School at the Southport Aerospace Centre. Families and friends of the graduates were present for the occasion.

THE KIDNEY FOUNDATION IS GOING NUTS AND WANTS YOU TO JOIN THEM

It's been happening in Manitoba every fall since 1976. Kidney Foundation volunteers and staff go nuts. Nuts over the Foundation's annual Peanut Campaign, that is.

Throughout September and October, local businesses, schools, hospitals, shopping malls and other organizations volunteer to help The Kidney Foundation of Canada raise money by selling peanuts. Proceeds from this year's peanut sales will help distribute more than 4,000 manuals to kidney patients, will help families discuss organ donation, and will support research into kidney disease across Canada, including Manitoba's Dr. Paul Grimm's work in transplant injection in very young children.

The Manitoba Branch hopes to raise $30,000 by "shelling out" 800 cases this fall. Each case contains 25 bags of 16 snackpacks.

"The peanuts are lightly salted and a nutritious snack that's ideal for Hallowe'en trick-or-treaters," says Merle MacAuley, Manitoba Branch Executive Director. "The important thing to remember about the campaign is that it's not just peanuts, it's people helping people."

This year the peanuts are being sold throughout Manitoba by individual volunteers. Anyone wishing to buy or sell the peanuts can simply contact Manitoba Campaign Co-ordinator Don McIntosh at the Foundation office at 949-1858 in Winnipeg or 726-0031 in Brandon.

The Kidney Foundation is the only national volunteer health organization committed to serving kidney patients and their . Since 1964, the Foundation has raised more than $30 000 000 for research into kidney disease and related disorders.

THOUGHT

*Somebody said that it couldn't be done,
But he with a chuckle replied.
"That maybe it couldn't, but he would be one
Who wouldn't say no till he tried.
So he buckled right in with a trace of a grin
On his face. If he worried he hid it.
He started to sing as he tackled the thing
That couldn't be done, and he did it.
Somebody scoffed: "Oh, you'll never do that;
Or at least no one has ever done it";
But he took off his coat and he took off his hat,
And the first thing we knew, he'd begun it.
With a lift of his chin and a bit of a grin,
Without any doubting or quidding,
He started to sing as he tackled the thing
That couldn't be done and he did it.
There are thousands to tell you it couldn't be done
There are thousands to prophesy failure;
There are thousands to point out to you, one by one,
The dangers that wait to assail you.
But just buckle in with a bit of a grin
Just take off your coat and go to it;
Just start to sing as you tackle the thing
That cannot be done, and you'll do it.*

Remembrance Sunday:

Remembrance Sunday Commemorative Service will take place Sunday Nov. 7th in the Chapel. ALL SERVICE PERSONNEL ENCOURAGED TO WEAR THEIR UNIFORMS.

Many years ago it was customary to wear black for many weeks following the death of someone close. You were "in mourning" and the black clothes, black tie, or black armband announced it to everyone who saw you. This had its advantages. It meant that people were given time to grieve and time to adjust. It also gave promise. Our mourning, then, as Christians, is always tempered with our hope and firm belief in the living proof of Christ's Resurrection. We are comforted still further by Christ's promise of forgiveness, understanding, and healing love for our loved ones. It is said that others a chance to show their sympathy to the family and their respect for the dead person.

Although this is no longer the custom today, we still need to grieve, adjust, receive sympathy, and know that our loved one was valued. The seeming finality of death is a paralyzing shock for all of us.

Jesus understood this and, long before his own death, he was reassuring us that we need not mourn forever and that eternal life was offered to all. He assures us over and over that love is not destroyed or ended in death and that those who die with him will live with him. That is his firm "to know all is to forgive all," and no one knows us better than God who created us.

How happy we can be then, throughout our lives, knowing that death has no lasting hold over us and those we love.

We suffer many other losses through life. The loss of a job, a relationship, health, or a dream we held dear can be just as devastating. We need time to grieve over and heal from these losses as well. Talking to friends, crying, finding support groups, and helping others are all aids to healing.

It is important, however, to remember to go to Jesus—Jesus who was always moved to compassion by suffering and who healed those who came to him. Jesus didn't just promise fulfillment in eternal life. He promised, "I came that they might have life and have it to the full" (Jn 10:10). When we turn to Jesus we find not only comfort, but fullness of love and joy.

A Word From The Catholic Chaplain

By Chaplain Roy

There are incidents that aggravate us, and even make us angry. A few examples:

you rush to the store on your way home, only to find that closing has changed and you did not know; or it seems that they have everything but what you need;

you hurry up only to wait in line at the cashier;

the car will not start because you left the lights on and the battery is dead.

All these incidents make us angry. How do we handle this anger? We often believe that the best way to deal with anger is to discharge it on someone and that we will feel better after; some people will even get physical: they will hit and throw things. This, of course, is not a healthy way of disposing of anger.

Actually, we should know that anger is very dangerous in that it can destroy us by injuring emotionally, and even physically at times, persons that we love.

There is, however, a form of anger that is helpful. The Gospel of Mark at Chapter 3, verse 5, we read that Jesus was angry: "He had looked round about on them with anger, being grieved at the hardness of their heart." This anger of Jesus' is actually grief in the presence of an unfortunate or unhappy situation. This is a legitimate anger: this anger is directed at its cause; people do not make us angry, but situations and events. Directing our anger at persons, therefore, does not solve anything. This anger is illegitimate and unhealthy, whether this person is ourselves or someone else. This anger is illegitimate and unhealthy because it focuses on the wrong issue. It is furthermore hurtful and aggravates the situation in that we could be contributing to the pain of someone who is negatively affected by the same situation; waiting is no harder on me than it is on the cashier trying to provide with the best service possible.

A legitimate and healthy anger is focused on the situation and this can become a source of energy aimed at changing a situation. Thus removing a cause of our anger; such an anger will have produced something positive.

Anger is not something we can live very long before it begins destroying us. We have to get rid of it by solving the problem which makes us angry or by simply getting rid of the anger which is inside us. Events make us angry but we are the ones who prolong the anger. There are two ways of getting rid of anger: one is humour. The best that can happen to us when we are angry is for someone to come along and crack a joke that will make us laugh. We are never angry when we are laughing. The two cannot live together, and laughing is better for us. Another way is prayer: we will never hurt God by being angry at Him and telling Him what makes us angry. This may even help us come to terms with our anger.

Keep smiling,
He loves you!!

MANAGING YOUR MONEY (First-time Buyers Bonanza)

By Harry L. Mardon

A bright spot in Canada's economy can be found in the housing field, especially for first-time home buyers.

And it's not just because mortgage interest rates are now at their lowest point in 30 years or so, although that's a big boon for anybody taking out a mortgage for the first time (or renewing an existing mortgage).

The real bonanza for the first-time buyer this year is Ottawa's First Home Loan Insurance program. It already has proved so popular that the federal government has extended it for a further five years. What the program does is offer that category of buyer the opportunity to put as little as five per cent down of the purchase price of a home. Within certain limits, of course.

This makes home ownership far more accessible for many Canadians, particularly younger ones who may be having difficulty in meeting the 10 per cent down-payment requirement under the regular loan insurance program of Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation (CMHC).

The maximum CMHC-insured mortgage loan under the regular program is 90 per cent of the first $180,000 of lending value of the house, plus 80 per cent of the balance. The minimum down-payment is 10 per cent.

To encourage greater home ownership, and thus stimulate the house-building industry, the maximum mortgage loan under the new program is 95 per cent of the lending value of the house. However, there is a set of loan ceilings. For Greater Toronto and Greater Vancouver the maximum house price under the program is $250,000.

That's a realistic recognition that housing prices in those two metropolitan areas are inflated ones. In 22 other Canadian centres as well as northern areas of Canada, where house prices have reached a fairly high average level, the maximum is $175,000. Elsewhere across Canada — including Winnipeg and the rest of Manitoba — the maximum is $125,000.
